COMPILER'S PREFACE.

At no time since the settling of America by our Puritan sires, has the public mind been so deeply interested in genealogical research as it has been for the last fifty years. There is and has been a growing disposition among all classes to make enquiry respecting their ancestry, and to search for records as for untold wealth; and every old record of the past is sought, to be unearthed as it were, ransacking Town, County, State and Church archives with the greatest zeal, and even the memories of tradition of their more aged relatives are severely tasked to fill up some vacant record, or to acquire more material for the genealogy.

And who can write a biography or trace the genealogy of our honored dead without feelings of profound respect?—for in the tracing of their descent, or in the recording of their acts, we see the scenes of daily life re-enacted. Who are our ancestry? They had their fathers and their mothers—their brothers and sisters—the same as we have ours; they had those who rejoiced at their birth and who mourned at their death; they had their loves, their affections, their prosperity and their adversity, their crosses and their pleasures; and in writing their sayings and doings we are in part, only, repeating the acts and doings of to-day.

And shall we love them less because they are dead? Shall we say that because they have gone from us that there is no love where they dwell? Or shall we not better say as the Prophet of old hath said: "Behold, I send you Elijah the Prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord, and he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children and the heart of the children to their fathers," etc.

(Malachi, 4, v. vi. verses.) And if their hearts are turned to us and ours to them, then this same love must exist with them as it does with us,—but this seems to be the prevailing custom,—and we must not doubt the sincerity, to think more of our dead after they are gone, than we did while they were with us.

But the desire to trace our lineage and to hold in remembrance those we have loved, seems one of the noblest, grand and most sublime aim in life, and one that seems prevalent among all enlightened people.

To keep from oblivion and to place a something tangible in the hands of those who shall live when I have passed away, and to encourage in the rising generation a desire to know from whom they sprung, has been my mainspring in prosecuting this labor of love, and presenting this memorial to the descendants of Matthias Farnsworth.

Accuracy in names, dates, incidents, etc., is what has been aimed at, and errors may have crept in—but I have sought authentic works, and have done a very large amount of correspondence, and have used everything possible within my reach to unfathom any knotty points that have arisen in the compilation of this genealogy. To Savage's Genealogical Dictionary; Butler's History of Groton; Bond's Watertown; Chandler's, Shirley, Mass.; Saunderson's, Charlestown, N. H.; History of Washington, N. H.; The New Eng. Hist. and Gen. Register; various Town Histories, Family Memorials, etc., and sketches from the "Monograph," I am indebted for many items. To my many valuable correspondents I return thanks, among whom are Claudius B. Farnsworth, Esq., of Pawtucket, R. I., for without the copy of a part of what he had obtained, the probabilities are I never would have compiled this book, or if I did, many links would have been missing.

Mr. Farnsworth writing to me 16 April, 1883, sending me some manuscript, said: "After Rev. James Delap Farnsworth's death, his papers came into my hands, and I have got from them much valuable material. My own energies have gathered much more than half of the materials in the following pages. They would have doubtless been more complete had I more time to bestow upon the subject and more enthusiasm in it, but such as I have I give. These papers may be a help to keep from oblivion the early beginnings in this country of a family, that if not very distinguished, have at least been respectable."

Joseph S. Farnsworth, Esq., of Windsor, Vt.; Alanson Gray, Esq., and Rev. P. S. Pratt of Dorset, Vt., have each aided me considerable in valuable links for which I had searched; and among my numerous correspondents, I wish to make mention of Gen. Jonathan G. Farnsworth, Albany, N. Y.; Hon. Josiah H. Drummond, Portland, Me.; Rufus G. and Joseph P. Farnsworth, Fitchburgh, Mass.; George Chandler, M. D., Worcester, Mass.; Mrs. Martha E. Farnsworth, Fort Scott, Kansas; Carlton J. Farnsworth, Gowanda, N. Y.; Dea. H. W. Farnsworth, Topeka, Kansas; J. B. Farnsworth, Esq., Mayfair, Ill.; and last, but not least, William E. Chute, Esq., Swampscott, Mass. I cannot enumerate all,—but to one and all who have aided me with information, or have answered any letter of enquiry, I sincerely return thanks.

To my own exertions are due the great portion of what is contained in this record. This is not my ideal of a genealogy—for there are many links yet to connect—and I do not intend to be satisfied with my past labors, but to continue the search, and invite correspondence from all bearing the name, or who have in any way become connected with the family; to aid me in the future, that all the disconnected links may be welded in, and any error that may be discovered by any one in the present work, I will feel grateful if they will inform me, so that it may be corrected. And from now on, let the Farnsworths all keep a record of their families, for it is a name that has borne inspection in the past, and may we all keep it so in the future.

Your servant and kinsman,

MOSES F. FARNSWORTH.

Manti, Utah, 15th Feby., 1897.

INTRODUCTION.

This work originated in the desire of the compiler,—a desire in which I am assured that my kindred among the living all participate,—to acquire the facts concerning the ancestry and lineage of the family of Matthias Farnsworth; and his descendants may well rejoice that all that has reasonably been gathered is now preserved, and the debt of gratitude to all who have labored so long and faithfully to accomplish this end, can hardly be repaid.

This natural desire to know the history of my ancestors was increased by hearing my elder brothers and sisters tell what they knew of our family, and in early life I endeavored to get from them all I could, and as I ripened in years this desire grew with me, and influenced by a sense of duty—if from no other cause—I have collected what I could and have arranged the genealogy of the whole family down to the present generation, and it is now offered to its numerous members for whose benefit it has been compiled.

Considering all the difficulties which beset the genealogist, I think I am safe in asking for this record the readers' indulgence and considerations, and that your criticisms will not be too severe; and to whatever rank of excellence this book will be found to belong, it is not for me to assert. One thing sure, I am conscious that I have done the best I could with the material I had and which my circumstances and ability would allow, and the relatives and friends must determine how good it is.

There are many discrepancies and conflictions in the various town histories and records, and sometimes when public records exist in the offices of town clerks, and in churches, they are found to be erroneous. These errors often arise from the imperfectness of the information imparted, and sometimes from carelessness, and I think we should not attach any criminal design in such cases,—Hence we have to take the records as we find them—make comparisons and do the best we can with them. If I were to try and please all, I probably would fall far short of doing so—therefore I have tried to get every fact and date that I could, so as to avoid too much criticism. "The blood that courses through our veins had flowed through a long succession of generations before it was parted into the drops which make us akin to each other," and the man who of all others is the least likely to pride himself on any ancestral line, is the genealogist; for he considers more than others how many progenitors every one of us have had. But in this case we have no reason to complain.

While our family have not been so noted perhaps as others, yet it has been one of marked integrity, and though humble, has made some distinction, and all—without exception—so far as the record goes, have been honorable in all their paths of life; and it is worthy of remark that in all this searching we have found none in the poor-houses, jails or prisons.

In this connection I think some of the words of Edward H. Farnsworth in the "Monograph," are better than mine. He says:—

"And what a creditable little chronicle it is—this of the Farnsworth family and its ancestors. Matthias Farnsworth brought with him from England none of the titles or insignia of rank that are so attractive to vanity, even in the bosom of a Republic. Those who value such baubles will not find gratification in these pages. But he came to America endowed with a sturdy independence, a rugged integrity, a due regard for morality, and a simple religious faith that were worth far more in subduing the unbroken forests and ungenial soil of New England, than aristocratic descent or heraldic device. He was respected and honored by those with whom his lot was cast, for the brave, true and manly qualities he possessed. And what can his descendants desire more than this? It was such as he that made the Puritan stock the peer—if not the superior—of any outgrowth of the divergent social and religious elements that planted the seed of a great Nation along the Atlantic coast in the seventeenth century.

"Give praise to others, early come or late,
For love or labor on our ship of state;
But this must stand above all fame and zeal:
The Pilgrim Fathers laid the ribs and keel;
On their strong lines we base our social health—
The man—the home—the town—the commonwealth!"

"Matthias Farnsworth was one of the early settlers who followed the Pilgrim Fathers, founded communities upon the lines marked out by them, and completed their work by transmitting some of their qualities to their descendants. If we of the nineteenth century have inherited some small portion—and let us hope that such is the case—we have ample cause for gratulation.

"The following pages will show that the descendants of Matthias Farnsworth have enjoyed in a marked degree the respect of their fellowmen; that they have been earnest workers; that such worldly honors as have come to individuals of the name, such positions as have been attained in the various pathways of life, have been the reward of merit rather than the result of self-seeking or favoritism; that they have been self-made in the truest sense, and it is the proud boast of the author of this book that, in a search for genealogical material extending over more than half a century, the prison and the almshouse have contributed no names to the record. May future generations do as well."

ORIGIN OF THE NAME.

The families of Farnsworth in the United States are all of English origin, and undoubtedly derive their name from one of two places in Lancashire, England, bearing the name of Farnworth. One of them is in the parish of Prescott, not far from Liverpool, on the way to Manchester. It is believed, however, that the family derived its name from Farnworth, in the parish of Dean, a few miles north-west from Manchester, in the Hundred of Salford. The name of those places has always been spelled without an "s," and the families bearing the name in England almost uniformly write it Farnworth.

All the immigrants of that name to this country in the seventeenth century wrote it in the same, or substantially the same way. But as the writers and recorders of those early times were not well instructed in orthography, they were not at all uniform in their spelling of this name. Thus we find ffarneworth, ffernworth, ffearneworth, ffarnot, ffarnom, ffearnoth, and many other forms. The Farnworths themselves were generally very little more uniform in their spelling than others were, until in the early part of the eighteenth century it was gradually changed to Farnsworth. The Groton records almost uniformly spell the name without an "s" until about 1750; but the usage of the family had changed somewhat earlier. The pronunciation in early times in this country was probably as if spelled Farnoth, as it is spelled in some of the records.

The introduction of the "s" into the name is no doubt a corruption, and probably arose from some notion of euphony. The same change has been made to some extent in England; and persons spelling their names in the American fashion are to be found in the directories of Manchester, Liverpool and London,—And in Manchester is a street named Farnsworth, spelled in the Manchester Directory as we spell it. At the same time it must be noticed that the principal old families of the name, located mainly in Lancashire, but to some extent elsewhere, scrupulously adhere to the ancient spelling.

The word is undoubtedly a Saxon descriptive compound, from fern (Anglo Saxon fearn), the fern plant, and worth, in Saxon English, a valuable farm, or estate, the whole signifying a ferny land, farm or estate, the places to which the name was applied having been very productive of ferns. The word worth, as used in the west of England, and to some extent elsewhere in early times, signified property, by means of which a man was "worth it," or a "worthy," and as the principal property of those days was land, it came generally to mean what we should call "landed property;" so a "landed estate" was spoken of as a "worth."

This usage was probably much more common in Lancashire than in any other part of England. And in the immediate neighborhood of Farnworth (within twenty miles of it) the traveller will find numerous places compounded with this word, such as Ainsworth, Rumworth, Cleworth, Unsworth, Pilsworth, Edgworth, Longworth, Southworth, Failsworth, Breworth, Butterworth, Budworth, Wardleworth, Ashworth, Shuttleworth and Whitworth. These are not all: and there are some names of the same origin, but of slightly different form.

Farnworth lies on the westerly side of the west branch of the Irwell, and on the other side of the river to the east lies a place called Fearney. It is not unlikely that as the name was frequently,—perhaps commonly,—in early times written Fearneworth, it was pronounced in three syllables, as if written: Fear-ney-worth. Thus one signs as witness to a will, in 21 Ed. I., (1291) Roger de Farneworth. And in the 4th Ed. II., (1311) Elias de Smethton, prior of the Knights Hospitalers of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, conveys certain lands in Platt, a place near-by Farnworth, by deed to Adam de farneworth. And his son Robert was seized of them by the same name in the 8th Ed. II., (1315).*

Farnworth in the parish of Dean, was an ancient manor of about 1400 acres, with a manor court, and had upon it, as early as can be identified, a stone residence that bore the name of Farnworth Hall. It was standing and occupied as the manor house as late as Queen Elizabeth's time, and perhaps a little later, but it was afterwards suffered to go to decay. It was probably occupied as a residence in the days of Joseph and Matthias Farnsworth, the early emigrants to this country.

The place where it stood is now occupied by laborers' cottages, but is still called, and is so designated on the local maps, "Farnworth Hall." It is about two miles south-easterly from the railway station at Bolton le Moors. After the old Hall went to decay a mansion house was built upon the manor, about two miles southerly, called Birch House, which is said to be a fine residence. The old manor is now a town, and has become noted as a place for the manufacture of paper. The largest mills in that trade in England are there. It had a population in 1881 of 19,380.

The "manor" or "honor" of Farnworth in Dean, was held for a long time by the same persons that held the adjoining estates of Hulton, Little Hulton, Middle Hulton, and Over Hulton, that lay directly south and south-west of it; and their arms are entered in the returns of the Herald's Visitations as of Hulton, or Hulton de farnworth, according as they were connected with one or the other of the estates. This was a powerful family as early as the reign of Edward

*See Blaine's History of Lancashire.

I, (1270). As this place was probably included by the Doomsday report in the time of William the Conqueror, (1066), in the territory of Manchester, and as the region is known to have been hardly used by him, perhaps he may have disposed of all of it to his followers. For all of Salford Hundred is said to have belonged to King Edward, wherein were twenty-one berewicks and as many thanes, none of whose names are given, but all of whom, very likely, were dispossessed. At any rate they did not appear to have any title to the land worth mentioning by the Conqueror.

Farnworth and Kearsley are organized together, ecclesiastically. Kearsley is a small adjoining place to the east, and Farnworth Church is near the line between them, and called the "Church of St. John." It is a handsome church, built of light-colored stone, in 1825, and opened for use in 1827. Farnworth was for some time in dispute as to its ownership; for the Hospitalers of St. John of Jerusalem claimed it in the twentieth year of Edward I., (1290), and the Abbey of Cockersand did so in the seventh and eighth Richard II., (1385); and it appears eventually to have fallen to the same family that held the neighboring and larger estates of Hulton.

At that time surnames had not come much into use in England; but at a later time they were adopted, and gradually became universal. Some persons were named hereditarily for personal peculiarities; some took the name of their trades, and others who had landed estates took the names of their estates; for estates bore well-known names earlier than families. If they had more than one estate, the owner made his choice among them, or used as many of them as he pleased; and if the estates passed to two or more sons, each took the name of the estate assigned to him.

At first those named from their estates among the landed class of English, either were, or affected to be, of Norman descent, and in naming themselves used the French preposition de, and so the owners and residents on the Fearneyworth, called themselves "de Farnworth."

"Farnworth in Prescott was less prominent than the one in Dean; but there is a chapel there wherein are many interesting monuments of the family of Bold; and it is said that King James I., when visiting the Earl of Derby who lived near by, while riding on horseback, found a silver horseshoe in the road which was claimed by the rector of Prescott,—which included Farnworth. On account of his extravagance, the tradition runs, that the King compelled him to transfer the great tithes of the rectory to King's College, Cambridge. There are several places in England whose names are compounded with Farn, and having a signification similar to Farnworth. For instance, there are three Farnboroughs,—that is, a ferny town; a Farndale,—that is, a ferny valley; a Farndish, three Farnduns, six Farnhams, a Farningham, said to be corrupted to Framingham; a Farnly and Farnsfield. The family name is common in Lancashire, Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire in England, and there are very respectable families bearing it, apparently all springing from the same source named; and in the churchyard of St. John, at Farnworth, the traveller can see the gravestones of many of the name."

EMIGRANTS TO AMERICA IN THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY.

JOSEPH FARNSWORTH AND HIS FAMILY.

Joseph Farnsworth of Dorchester, Mass., is the first person bearing the name of Farnsworth that we know of in this country. He is first heard of there about 1632, but he probably came over with the Dorchester company in 1628, though perhaps not in the first vessel. He was admitted freeman, March 14, 1638–9. Another Joseph Farnsworth, probably his son, was admitted freeman, May 2, 1649. The name is spelled in the record in both cases "ffarnworth." Joseph Farnworth, Sen., died Jan. 12, 1659, and his will was proved and is recorded in Suffolk Registry of Wills, vol. 1, folio 327, and is printed in the New England Hist. and Gen. Register, vol. 9, page 140. Joseph's first wife was Elizabeth, surname unknown. His second wife was Mary, widow of John Long. After Joseph's death, his widow soon married John Wilcock, then a resident of Dorchester. She was executor of her husband "ffarnworth's" will, and joining her husband Wilcock, she made a deed of part of his land, April 20, 1660, to William Pond. (See Suffolk Deeds, B. VII., folio 296).

By an old record in the City Register's office, Boston, entitled: "Marriages, Births, Deaths," on page 39, under the head of "Dorchester," together with other sources of information, (Savage's Dic., vol. II, p. 143), we learn that Joseph had the following children, viz:

1. MARY, b. 30 March, 1637; m. Abraham Ripley.
2. HANNAH, b. 14 Dec. 1638; m. Simon Peck.
3. REBECCA, b. 2 Jan. 1640; m. John Ruggles.
4. RUTH, b. 3 June, 1642; m. William Puffer.
5. JOSEPH, prob. his first born.
6. ELIZABETH, b.—; m. John Mansfield.
7. ESTHER, b.—.
8. SAMUEL, b.—. Moved to Windsor, Ct., and married (1) Sarah, daut. of Thomas Stoughton, Jr., 1667; (2) Mary Moses.
9. LEONORA, bp. 14 Nov. 1639, in Dorchester; was prob. his daut.
10. RACHEL, b.—; m. Matthias Puffer at Braintree, 18 March, 1662; may also prob. be his daut. Nothing further is known of their parentage.

Samuel Farnsworth, the youngest son, took the largest part of the estate under the will. He sold part of the estate April 26, 1678, to Thomas Platt. In that deed he describes himself as "Samuel ffarnworth, of Windsor, in the Colony of Connetticot, housewright, (son of Joseph ffarnworth sometime of Dorchester in the Mattachusetts Colony of New England, cooper, deceased)." Apparently by the will Joseph has named, or intended to name all his children in New England that were living when he made it. It has been supposed by some that Joseph was father of Matthias, the ancestor of the Groton Farnsworth's, who was at the date of the will probably living in Lynn, and is not mentioned in it. But as he calls Joseph, Jr., his eldest son, and he was admitted freeman, May 2, 1649, by which it appears possible that he may have been born in England as late as 1627, while Matthias was born 1612, Joseph could not probably have been his father; but more than likely Joseph and Matthias were brothers, though there is not sufficient evidence to form a definite opinion on the subject.

Joseph Farnsworth, Jr., had issue: (See Windsor, Ct., records). His first wife died Aug. 28, 1684; he married (2) Nov. 1685, Mary Moses. His child by 1st wife:

1. MARY, b. 17 May, 1678; d. 26 May, 1678. The monument of her tomb was standing in the old cemetery at Windsor, 1863.

Child by 2nd wife:

2. JOSEPH, b. 19 June, 1694.

The descendants of Joseph Farnsworth bearing the name of Farnsworth, are not very numerous, but there are many descendants of the daughters scattered over the country. A Joseph Farnswarth, probably a descendant of Joseph, Jr., graduated at Yale College in 1736. He married 1741, Mary Blinn, and had the following children:

1. MARY, b. 1 Aug. 1742.
2. JOSEPH, b. 12 Aug. 1744.
3. WILLIAM, b. 11 April, 1747.
4. JAMES, b. — Aug. 1749.
5. ABIGAIL, b. 10 Aug. 1753.

A Joseph Farnsworth, probably the son of Joseph and Mary (Blinn) Farnsworth, was appointed Deputy Commissary to the Continental Army for Vermont, and in 1776 he was at Charlestown, N. H., in execution of the duties of his office to provide supplies for the army collected at Ticonderoga, to oppose the movements in that direction of the British troops. He was at the time of his appointment a resident of Middletown, Ct., but he moved his family to Bennington, Vt., where he took up his residence and lived the rest of his days. He had a son, distinguished as a judge, a physician and a soldier, Hon. Joseph D. Farnsworth, who was born Dec. 22, 1771, at Middletown, Ct. He went to Vermont with his father and became one of the most eminent citizens of that State. He studied medicine and practiced at Addison, Vt.; thence he removed to Fairfield in that State. In 1807 he was appointed a judge, and the next year Chief Justice, which office he held —with one year's intermission—until 1824. He moved to Fairfax, Vt., where he died Sept. 9, 1857. He was foremost in rousing the people in Vermont to oppose the invasion of the British troops by the way of Lake Champlain in the war of 1812, and volunteered to lead them in person.* His descendants are numerous in north-western Vermont, where they have been for many years among the most prominent people. Deacon Andrew Farnsworth of Bakersfield, Vt., and Andrew A. Farnsworth of Peterborough, N. H., are of this stock. Also Dr. Davilla Farnsworth, probably of this stock, a native of Connecticut, went West and settled in Ohio about 1812, being of the very early settlers of that State.

THOMAS FARNSWORTH.

About the year 1681 there came to this country a Quaker, who apparently was connected in some way with the adventure of William Penn, who about the same time took a conveyance of Pennsylvania from the Duke of York, and with it a conveyance of western New Jersey.

Thomas Farnsworth invested in a large tract of land in the western New Jersey purchase, at what is now Bordentown. His land included all, or the main part, of the present city of Bordentown. He spent the remainder of his life there, where he raised a large family. Some time after his death his family sold the place to a man named Borden, who eventually gave to it his own name. At present the name of the original owner is preserved there only in the name of the principal street of the place, which is called Farnsworth Avenue.

The descendants of Thomas Farnsworth are to be found in Pennsylvania and in the more southern States. Some account of this family may be found in "Bordentown and the Surrounding Country," by E. M. Woodward, Ellisdale, Monmouth county, N. J., published 1879, by McCrellish & Quigley, Trenton, N. J.

A Thomas Farnsworth, a supposed descendant of Thomas of Bordentown, who in the last century was owner of all the south part of Staten Island, near New York, which he occupied as a farm. This Thomas married and had three sons, viz:

1.* 1. DANIEL, b. about 1766; d. 1848 in Buckhannon, W. Va. He married Rachel Stout of New Jersey. About 1821 he moved to Buckhannon, Upshur county, Va., now West Va., and took with him five sons, of which, hereafter.

2. 2. THOMAS, b. about 1768; m. a Miss Bray of New Jersey.

3. 3. JOHN, b. —; m. — —; name of wife unknown. He served in the Revolutionary War, and was killed in one of the battles of the war. I am unable to give any account of his family.

1.

Daniel Farnsworth and his wife, Rachel Stout, had issue on Staten Island, New York, before he moved to Virginia, viz:

4.* 1. JAMES S., b. —, 1793; m. Abigail Wilcox of Newark, N. J. Abigail Wilcox was daughter of Moses and Polly (Line) Willcox. Moses was son of John and Massy (Ross) Willcox. John was son of Peter and Phebe (Badgley) Willcockse. Peter Willcockse came from England, and settled between the mountains, on a hill known to this day as "Peter's Hill," on the north side of Blue brook, a little above Feltville, in Union county, New Jersey, 6 Jan. 1736–7. There was surveyed to him there, by Joseph Morss, surveyor for the "Elizabethtown Associates," 424 acres of land, lying along the east branch of Green brook, called Blue brook. Feltville is situated on this tract of land. The Rev. Mr. Hunting, in his history of the Parish of Westfield, Union county, New Jersey, says: that "this Parish was settled about the year 1720, by the English, and that James Badgley and Peter Willcockse located on the mountain before any person settled below, because it abounded in heavy timber." Phebe Badgley, with her brothers John, James and George, and sisters Sarah and Betsey, came from Long Island, New York, to Elizabethtown, New Jersey. James S. Farnsworth lived at Buckhannon, West Va.

5.* 2. THOMAS, b. —, 1796; m. (1) Catherine Simons; he had six sons and five daughters; m. (2) Miss Currence. He and his wives lived and died in Buckhannon, West Va.

6.* 3. NATHANIEL, b. 22 Feby. 1797; m. Susanna Pamelia Simons, (a sister of Catherine, his brother Thomas' wife), b. 23 May, 1806. They both lived and died in Buckhannon, West Va.

7. 4. JOHN, b. —, 1800; m. Prudence Mounts, and had four sons and four daughters. He lived and died near Parkersburg, West Va. No further trace.

8. 5. ISAAC, b. —, 1802; m. Louisa Tracy, and had two sons and three daughters. He lived in Wheeling, West Va.; moved West, and died of cholera on his journey. His wife and son James are in the West last heard from.

James S. Farnsworth and his wife, Abigail Wilcox, had issue in Buckhannon, West Va.:

1. Rachel, b. —, 1815; m. — Osborn, res. Gilmer, West Va. He died.

9. 2. John S., b. —, 1817; m. (1) Adaline Benson; (2) Sarah Heckhart; (3) Florinda Wafter.

10. 3. Daniel D. T., b. 23 Dec. 1819; m. (1) Ann M. Gibson; (2) Mary T. Ireland. I have no record of his children. He took a very prominent part in behalf of the Union at the breaking out of the Rebellion. He was elected to the Legislature, which was to meet at Richmond in 1861. But as he was for the Union, the war which broke out just before its meeting, prevented his taking his seat there. But by virtue of that election he became a member of the convention that organized the State government of Virginia at Wheeling, 11 June, 1861. This body authorized the formation of the new State of West Virginia. He was chairman of the committee that was appointed to draft an ordinance for the formation of the new State, and the ordinance was mainly drawn by him; the State of West Virginia was admitted into the Union. He served in the Senate of the new State for seven years, and presided over the Senate two years. During his presidency in 1869, on the election of Gov. A. J. Borgman to the U. S. Senate, he became Governor of the State for the remainder of the term. He rendered invaluable service to the country during the War of the Rebellion, as it was largely due to his influence that West Virginia became an organized power for the defence of the Union. He died 5 Dec. 1892.

11. 4. Moses W., b. 13 Jan. 1823; m. (1) Eliza Heckhart of Leading Creek, Gilmer Co.; (2) Martha Brake of Buckhannon; (3) Almira Saxton of Buckhannon.

5. Mary J., b. —, 1825; m. Henderson Bell of Weston, Lewis Co.; res. Bell's Mills, near Sutton, West Va.

6. Eva F., b. —, 1827; m. W. W. Warder of Pranty Town, now Troy, Gilmer Co. Has a farm of six hundred acres.

5.

Thomas Farnsworth and his wife, Catherine Simons, had issue in Buckhannon, West Va.:

1. DANIEL, b. —, 1823; dead.
12. 2. CLARISSA LOUISA, b. —, 1825; m. 1848, John Davis of Morgantown; living 1895 in Bennett Co., Texas.
3. LYDIA ANN, b. —, 1827; dead.
4. JAMES R., b. —, 1829; dead.
13. 5. SUSAN PAMELIA, b. 10 April, 1830; m. (1) Zephaniah Boswell; (2) Jacob Roll or Rule.
14. 6. CAROLINE, b. 2 Jan. 1833; m. William Hawkins of Lewis Co., West Va.
15. 7. THOMAS GRANDISON, b. —, 1836; m. 10 Sept. 1856, Mary Jane Moore Marshall, daut. of Thomas and Margaret, of Bath Co., Va. He represented Upshur county, W. Va., in the House of Delegates, 1870, 1872, 1873. Was twenty years Councilman, two years Mayor, and (1894) now Health Officer of Buckhannon, W. Va.
16. 8. FRANKLIN LEONARD, b. 1838; m. Ann Eliza Greer of Sullivan Co., Mo.; (2) Martha Jane Zickafoce, (a widow whose maiden name was Currence). He served in the Confederate army during the War of the Rebellion.
9. JOSEPH RAPP, b. 1840; dead.
10. WILLIAM LLOYD, b. 1842; dead.
11. CHRISTINA JANE, b. 1843; dead.

6.

Nathaniel Farnsworth and his wife, Susanna Pamelia Simons, had issue in Buckhannon, West Va.:

17. 1. ISAAC PHILANDER, b. 24 May, 1825; m. (1) Mary Benson; (2) —— Burns.
18. 2. WILLIAM DENNIS, b. 28 May, 1827; m. (1) Lucinda Reger; (2) Columbia Reger, (sisters).
19. 3. THOMAS JEFFERSON, b. 27 May, 1829; m. Mary E. Carper. He distinguished himself as a leading citizen of the State, having been repeatedly elected to both Houses of its Legislature, and serving as President of the Senate for four years. He was recognized as an uncommonly able presiding officer. Both he and his cousin, the Governor, are large landed proprietors in West Virginia, and follow agricultural pursuits upon a large scale. He has one son and three daughters. His daut. Martha m. 23 Nov. 1893, Mr. McCarty.

20.* 4. LEONARD SIMON STOUT, b. 24 Dec. 1830; m. 3 July, 1856, Catherine Padget of Augusta, Va. He resides at Buckhannon and has a photographic gallery; is also a dentist, having his office on Main street. He is a very energetic and nervy man, having made three trips overland to California,—since his first trip there in 1853,—and returning home by water. He is a Mason, Odd Fellow, etc. Has taken much interest in the history of the Farnsworth family, and has furnished all the material for this sketch of the family of Thomas Farnsworth.

21. 5. CALVIN ELDRIDGE, b. Jan. 1833; m. Anna McCrady. Is living (1893) in Mariposa, California. Has four sons and five daughters. His son Eldridge C., is practicing law at Visalia, Cal.

22. 6. DANIEL MARCELLUS, b. 3 June, 1839, is unmarried, and is living (1893) somewhere in Kansas. He served with distinction throughout the War of the Rebellion, in the Union army, in the First West Virginia, Light Artillery, known as the Upshur Battery.

23. 7. JAMES JACKSON, b. 12 May, 1841; m. H. W. Fiddler, and had:

1. Gladys, b. 30 May, 1882.
2. Mary P., b. 29 Aug. 1884.
3. Forest J., b. 15 Sept. 1886.
4. George B., b. 21 May, 1890.

24. 8. SARAH JANE, b. 23 June, 1846; m. Edwin Frey, who served for four years and six months in the Union army, leaving the service at the close of the war as Colonel of the Twentieth Ohio Infantry Volunteers.

25. 9. MARY ELIZABETH, b. 4 April, 1836; m. T. S. Heavner. Both are dead, leaving one daut., L. A. Heavner.

26. 10. CATHERINE L., b. 4 April, 1836; m. John M. Pinnell. Both are dead; had two sons and one daut. His son J. M. Pinnell, is a merchant.

27. 11. Daughter, b. — —.

20.

Leonard Simon Stout Farnsworth and his wife, Catherine Padget, had issue in Buckhannon, West Va.:

First five born in California:

28. 1. Child, b. — Sept. 1857, and died unnamed.

29. 2. ZONIE ELIZABETH, b. 29 Sept. 1858; m. (1) Clark H. Holyfield of Easton, W. Va.; he d. leaving one daut. born 1881. She m. (2) 1 Sept. 1892, Joseph Trowbridge of Kingwood, W. Va.

30. 3. ELLA PAMELIA, b. 29 Feby. 1860; d. 7 Dec. 1860, ae. 9 months.

31. 4. LEE LEONARD, b. 16 April, 1861. Is 1893 in Chicago, Ill.; is a clerk 3513 Indiana Avenue; m. 16 April, 1891, Kittie N. Commens, b. 2 Oct. 1868, at Ladose, Wis.

32. 5. WILLIE ELDRIDGE, b. 25 Nov. 1862.

33. 6. IDA MAY, b. 9 June, 1864; m. R. E. Curry; is living in Addison, W. Va., and has one son, Dana.

34. 7. THOMAS OTHELLO, b. 9 Nov. 1865; is running a phonograph.

35. 8. DESSIE DEMONA, b. 27 Feby. 1868; m. Dr. Randolph C. Smith. They reside in Middlebury, Va., where he is practicing his profession.

36. 9. LOY ARTHUR, b. 22 Nov. 1870; is a clerk with Charles S. Wagner, Salem, Va., in a flour and feed mill.

37. 10. BURT ULYSSUS, b. 13 Dec. 1871. He is a natural musician—a veritable prodigy. He is called the champion French harp player of the world, playing on two instruments at the same time. Is also a shoemaker, etc.

38. 11. KITTIE CORA, b. 29 March, 1873. She was returning home from Chicago, when becoming violently ill she raised the car window to vomit. The train, running 55 miles an hour, in rounding a sharp curve gave a sudden lurch, and she was thrown from the window and instantly killed. She was too good and too well known in the community for any one to suppose she suicided. The following obituary from the Buckhannon Delta, March 28, 1894, was written by the Rev. Mr. Cook, her pastor:

OBITUARY: "Kittie C. Farnsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. S. Farnsworth, was born in Buckhannon, West Virginia, March 29, 1873, and died in Belleville, Ohio, March 17, 1894. She united with the M. E. Church during the year 1887, under the labors of Rev. L. H. Jordan, and continued in its fellowship until death. In the month of November, 1893, she removed by certificate her membership from the church in Buckhannon to a church of the same denomination in the city of Chicago, from which place she was returning when overtaken by death. She was one of the original members of the Epworth League chapter in the church at Buckhannon, took a deep interest in its work, delighted in its prosperity and often contributed to its success. She frequently occupied a prominent place on the literary program, and could be relied upon at any time to participate in the devotional services, being qualified for such work by a piety and devotion remarkable for one of her age. As a student she was ambitious and diligent, regarded by her instructors as a young lady of superior intellect. In society cheerful, attractive and rich in the love of friends, the accident by which she lost her life was as strange as it was sad, and threw a shadow of gloom over the entire community, and the day on which the intelligence of her death was received will be remembered as one of sorrow. Her funeral from the M. E. Church was one of the largest conducted by the writer since coming to the town, and although she died among strangers, her mortal remains were laid to rest by the tender hands of her friends in the presence of a multitude, all of whom were anxious to show their sympathy for the grief-stricken family and perform some kindly office to the dead."

39. 12. CLIFTON PLEASANT, b. 21 Aug. 1874; d. aged 23 days.
40. 13. FRED HOWARD, b. 20 June, 1878, is a clerk in a stationery store in Buckhannon.
41. 14. FRENA LEOTA, b. 2 Aug. 1879.
42. 15. HARMON GARFIELD, b. 17 Nov. 1880.

Joseph Farnsworth of Dorchester; Thomas Farnsworth of Bordentown, and Matthias Farnsworth of Groton, whose history and descendants form the subject of this memorial, were the only emigrants of the name, so far as is known, who settled in America prior to the present century; and all bearing the name here, except a few of recent emigration, are their descendants. In the following pages will be found the family of Matthias Farnsworth.

MATTHIAS FARNSWORTH.

HIS LIFE AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

Matthias Farnworth, as his name was first written, and in early times in this country was usually pronounced "Farnoth," first appears at Lynn, Mass., where he was a resident in 1657; that being the earliest date in which his name appears in the Lynn records. But he was probably resident there some years before. When he came to this country, how, or with what family, is unknown. But that he resided there, was a farmer, and had a farm near what is now Federal Street, on which he lived until 1660 or 1661, is very certain.

His first child, Joseph, as appears by the records there, was born 17 Nov. 1657. He probably moved to Groton in 1660, though it is uncertain when the first actual settlement of Groton was made. The first petition is dated 16, 3 mo: 1656, but probably they were not fully established as a settlement until 1660. The records of the town commence in a very brief way in 1662, though it is very likely that some of the settlers had moved there two or three years earlier.

Matthias is first mentioned in the records of Groton at a town meeting held 27 Nov. 1664:

"2ly it was this daye voated and granted yt Mathias ffarnworth shall haue fortey polle of land to be layd out agaynst his house next to James his Broke (James' Brook) for a building place puided (it) do not predgedese the hye way." And at the same meeting "Richard Blood William Lakin Mathias ffarnworth James Knop and William Longley were chosen "emparsall" by the town, and John Laurence sen. to arbitrate a dispute, etc." (See early Groton Records, by S. A. Green, p. 12).

He had a child born in Lynn in 1660. He must have moved to Groton soon after, as he had his house built and was a resident there, where he was recognized, and an acting citizen. It would be interesting to know what land he owned at Lynn, how long he occupied it, and when he disposed of it and moved to Groton, and also what children he had born in Lynn; but on all these points we have but very little information. The records are very brief, incomplete and obscure.

So far as we can learn from the records, we have the name of only one wife, Mary Farr, who was the daughter of George Farr of Lynn. He died 21 Jan. 1689, leaving a will dated 15 Jan. 1688–9, wherein he calls himself "about 77 years of age." His wife survived him many years, dying in 1717, and was probably much younger than he was. For as his daughter Elizabeth, who married James Robinson of Groton, was born in 1647, and his last child, Joseph, was born in 1678, if Mary Farr was the mother of all his children, she must have borne them during a period extending over thirty-one years; this is possible but hardly probable. The probabilities are that he had married and lost one wife before he married Mary Farr.

Possibly the reference in his will to some chance of difficulty with his eldest son, Matthias, Jr., might have with some of the rest of the family, may have had its origin in the jealousy of children by different mothers. George Farr, the father of his wife, Mary Farr, is named in the letter of instructions sent from the company in London to the officials at Salem, as a shipwright sent out by them in that business in 1629. He appears, however, to have given up shipbuilding very early, and to have engaged as a land owner in farming in Lynn, near the place where Matthias Farnsworth had land. He had several children who survived him, one of whom married Nicholas Hutchins, then of Lynn, but who, soon after the settlement of Groton, moved there, and purchased land adjoining to that owned by Matthias Farnsworth, and lived upon it.

Matthias made a power of attorney in a case pending in the court at Salem, to one Edward Richards, who was an early settler at Lynn, in which he calls him his "beloved brother." This Richards' wife's christian name was Ann, which, so far as any record goes, was not the name of any of George Farr's daughters. In what way he came to be "brother," perhaps "brother-in-law," to Matthias, is a question which, if ever answered, may throw some further light on the subject.

The birth-place of Matthias in England, and the time of his arrival in America, are yet somewhat enshrouded in mystery. He may have been, and very likely was, very nearly related to Joseph of Dorchester, from the fact of his naming two of his sons "Joseph," he surely was interested in the name, and that he was possibly a younger brother.

The first certain knowledge that we have of Matthias at Groton, is in the memorandum of the Rev. John Fisk of Chelmsford, who was a member of the Church Council held at Groton early in the year 1664, to consider certain dissensions which probably grew out of the settlement of Rev. Mr. Willard as the minister of the town.* The Council consisted of Major Simon Willard and Rev. Joseph Rolandson of Lancaster, and Rev. John Fisk and John Webb of Chelmsford. This Council met at Groton, May 10, 1664. The record says:

"By reason of some uncomfortable differences that had been amongst them as aboute Church Government, they had been hitherto hindered from goeing on with that worke of Christ, of coming into a Church way to enjoy all ordinances amongst them, they Had now resolved to lay down and bury all former differences amongst them, and had sent to the persons above mentioned to be as a council to them, to which they submitted themselves to them, to be directed according to the Rules of God's word," &c.

This dispute, by consent of the town, was first submitted to a committee of eleven persons, of whom Matthias Farnsworth was one. (The name is spelled in the record Mathias Fanmouth). The record says:

> ' These 11 (eleven) being called before the council presented themselves, and being Minded of the greatness of ye work they were now to attend about, and som other things as referring to their owne spiritual comfort and peace, and the honor of Christ and of ye gospel, were desired to go apart and consider amongst themselves if they could agree about a way of their satisfying themselves each in other as to the going on together in that work, and in case of agreement to come to us [the council] and make report of it, and of the way they had agreed upon, in case otherwise, to let the council understand wherein they disagreed, and the cause."

It is to be noticed that this was in the year 1664, soon after the restoration of Charles II, and when men's minds were very unsettled as to what constituted the Church, who should be entitled to admission into it, and what should be its government. England had striven with these questions for about a hundred years, and the great rebellion, with Cromwell at its head, that had been caused more by the ecclesiastical than by the political questions involved in it, had just been terminated.

And Matthias Farnsworth and his associates, who were just building their log houses and clearing away the forest so as to raise grain for feeding their families, while Indians were prowling like wolves around their settlement, were troubled with the same questions that had so long troubled their old homes. These were serious men, of prayerful habits, who were in earnest about these questions, as they thought they concerned the substance of religion. And we find his neighbors and the Council both looking to Matthias and his ten associates as proper persons to settle this matter for them. The first day the committee discussed the question together in vain. They tried twice without success. They adjourned to the next day, but at their first session they could not agree. On another attempt they did agree upon what should be required of members of the church, in very general terms, that appear eventually to have been the basis of the action in ecclesiastical matters of the church and the town. At any rate the Council adjourned after hearing the committee's report without expressing any very definite opinion upon it, a course perhaps to be commended for its prudence.* This first glimpse of Matthias shows him to have been a man fit, in the estimation of his neighbors, to consider and act for them on the highest questions, as they thought, in which they were concerned.

He was a member of the church, and no doubt brought up his children in the "fear of the Lord," as all of them became communicants of the church,—at least all his sons did so, and probably all his daughters.

The way the thoughts of the people who settled Groton were turned, is apparent from the fact that the whole subject of the first town meeting, held June 23, 1662, was to determine where the minister's house and the meeting-house should stand. All matters affecting only this world were allowed to wait.

The next view we get of him is at the town meeting, Nov. 27, 1664, and this is his first appearance in the town records as they now are. As those records are imperfect—some parts having been lost—and the doings of the town having been very imperfectly recorded, he may have been connected with the town matters before this time. These records, and the fact that in May, 1663–4, he had been made one of the committee for settling the terms of their church organization, show that he had both a house and residence in Groton at that time, and that he had been there long enough to have acquired such a respectable position in the judgment of his associates that they were ready to submit to him the consideration—both in religious and business matters—of those things which were of most consequence to them. It seems reasonable to conclude that he came to Groton with the earliest settlers in 1661–2.

*Green's Groton Records, p. 191–193.

The land granted to the proprietors of the town of Groton was shared among them in proportion to the amount contributed by each to the common fund. In this distribution the largest amount that was allowed to be assigned to one party was a "twenty acre right; though any proprietor was allowed to increase his proportion by purchase from others. The whole land was supposed to be appropriated. By this arrangement it came about that an "acre right" represented a claim to about forty-four acres, but the exact amount has never been determined. A sale of these rights was held valid when approved by the body of the proprietors.

Some of the proprietors, using their privilege, increased their rights beyond the "twenty acre" proportion, by purchase from others. Matthias was an original subscriber for a "twenty acre" right as allowed by the organization, and his several proportions were assigned him, or to his successors to the right, from time to time as divisions were made. From Green's Early Records of Groton, p. 178–9, I extract the following:

The lands of Matthias Farnsworth:

1. Vplands. His houselot, ninty acres, more or lesse, lyeing on both sids the mill hye way, bounded on the north with the sidhill by James his brook, westerly partly with Justin Holden and partly with comon land, south east with the mill hye way.

Reuised, compared, and confirmed by the Sellect men, according to the order of the towne.

JOHN MORSSE, Clark, Decem. 13, 1674.

The brook forming so conspicuous a figure in the foregoing description as "James his brook," was probably so named in consequence of its being the well known hunting ground of an Indian called "Jeems" by the settlers, whose remains, tradition says, were found after his death by the brook, near the westerly edge of the land thus assigned to Matthias Farnsworth.

James' brook is said by Butler and others to have been so named from James Parker, who lived near it, before it entered Broad Meadow, on the Main Street. But the lower part of the brook, below the meadow a mile or more from James Parker's house, was first called by that name, as is well known, soon after the settlement was first made.

The first of the lots described was the one on which he had built his house, and lay on both sides of the road, just southerly and easterly from James' brook, where it crosses the road the second time from Groton Centre to Ayer. That and the next adjoining lot was probably in part on the other side of the brook. The last described lot was probably much farther south, in the present town of Harvard, and near the Prescott Mill. Perhaps it was the land on which his son Jonathan afterwards lived.

The house built on the first described lot, stood a little south-easterly of the bridge across the brook, about where H. Sawtell's house stood, as marked on the map of Groton in Butler's History of the town. It was a log house, as were the houses of all the early settlers. It was undoubtedly burned by the Indians when nearly the whole town was destroyed by them, March 13, 1676. He afterwards rebuilt it, and it was standing until about the year 1820, when it was torn down to give place to modern improvements. The road near it was one of the earliest laid out in the town, and was made to connect Groton with Lancaster, then its nearest neighbor, and was the second Lancaster road, and is perhaps the one referred to in the town records in 1664, which Richard Blood and John Lakin were then engaged in laying out, although there must have been a path opened there as far as the crossing of the brook somewhat earlier.

After the road had been opened for a few years to Lancaster, the town made an agreement with John Prescott to build a mill near where it crossed the Nonacoicus, sometimes called the "mill brook," within the present town of Harvard, to grind the people's grain, and saw their lumber, and so it soon came to be called "the mill hye way." In going from the first Groton meeting-house to Lancaster in those days, you would pass along on what is now the direct way to the bridge over the James brook, when you would come to what is now the Main Street, and would go along that street southerly, to near where Jonas Prescott used to live, then turn to the right, passing by "Prescott's blacksmith shop," and thence on, crossing the brook again, passing on the westerly side in the depression between the hills near the brook for about a mile, when you would come to a sharp turn of the brook to the west, where the road crosses the brook again. Then climbing up on the high land you would pursue your way southerly by the mill and on to Lancaster. It was by the last named crossing of the brook where Matthias Farnsworth built his house. On his land there he made his clearing in the forest; from there he saw the Indians in 1676 burn the most of the town; from there he escaped with his family to Concord; to that place he returned two years later, 1678, and again began his venture in the wilderness; there he spent the later years of his life; there several of his children were born, and there he died.

The place selected by or assigned to him has much natural beauty. The land is high, and looked over to the west and south-west, the only way open, for to the north and east, directly behind him, lay the Indian Hills. As the country then was covered by an unbroken forest, it must have appeared very attractive. The westerly course of James brook, from there to the Nashua river, is through a depression between the higher lands to the north and south; and beyond the Nashua it opened into the valley to the north-west, through which the Squanacook runs, at the foot of the Shirley highlands into the Nashua, making a view of many miles of loveliness. But at the end of this view and beyond these valleys you look over a beautiful rise on the left, up to the Wachusett mountain, and thence northerly along the range of blue mountains that run to the Monadnock in New Hampshire.

It would be interesting to know the kind of a life passed by Matthias and his family in that old log house. Far from the sea coast, far from markets, all the clothing and the food for the family was the product of the land they had cleared, and of their continued labor. All the cloth they wore was spun, woven and made up by the women; and the sheep that furnished the wool, and the flax that was made into linen, came from the farm. And amid so much toil, indoors and out, he and his wife Mary brought up to mature age and to be married a family of nine children, losing, so far as we know, only two. He was admitted as a freeman of the Colony, May 16, 1670.

In the year 1675, "King Philip's War" broke out between the Indians and the New England settlers, commencing June 20, at Swanzey, Bristol county, which was then in the Plymouth Colony, and soon spread so that many of the Massachusetts towns were attacked, many of the settlers killed, their property was destroyed and their houses and other buildings were burned. Rev. William Hubbard, in his "Narrative of the Indian Wars," says:

"March 2, [1676] they assaulted Groton; the next day over night Major Willard with seventy horse came into town; forty foot also came to their relief from Watertown, but the Indians were all fled having first burnt all the houses in town save four that were garrisoned, the meeting house being the second house they fired. Soon after Captain Sill was sent with a small party of dragoons of eight files to fetch off the inhabitants of Groton, and what was left from the spoil of the enemy, having under his conduct sixty carts, being in depth from front to rear above two miles, when a party of Indians lying in ambush at a place of eminent advantage fired upon the front and mortally wounded two of the first carriers, who both died the next night. . . . . Soon after, this village was deserted, and destroyed by the enemy, yet it was a special providence that though the carts were guarded with so slender a convoy, yet there was not any considerable loss sustained."

The "next night" in the narrative is probably a misprint for "fortnight," as the final attack, when the settlers moved away, was two weeks after, March 17th.*

It was probably on the 17th March, 1676, that Matthias, with his family in one of those "sixty carts," was on his way to Concord in that frightened procession, two miles in length. The Indians were around them, their houses were burned, the product of fifteen years' hard labor in the wilderness, except so much as they could take with them, had been abandoned. His wife Mary; his daughter Sarah, then about fourteen years old; his son Samuel, six years old; his daughter Abigail, nearly five years old; and his son Jonathan, an infant under a year old, were in the cart. That must have been a terrible time for him. He had with him perhaps—or more likely in the armed guard—his three elder sons. His daughter Mary had been sent, in anticipation of the danger, to her mother's relations at Lynn for safety. It is also likely that his son Joseph had been sent there somewhat earlier for the same reason, and it appears that he died there. What hardship and suffering Matthias and his family endured in that forced emigration, and in their residence at Concord, where they and all the rest of the Groton settlers stayed for two years, and how they lived during that time, we can only conjecture, it is not recorded. They stayed there until the immediate danger from Indian rifles and tomahawks was over, and they thought they could try their fortunes in the wilderness again.

In the spring of 1678, at the call for the inhabitants of Groton to return,* when some of the original settlers had given up their interest in the settlement, Matthias and his family, including his three oldest sons, who were then of age, went back to the old clearing in the forest, gathered together again such household stuff, farm tools and stock as they had been able to save, rebuilt their home and commenced anew the work of life, at the ashes of their old homestead. But they must have carried on their work under a constant fear of the merciless Indians, who some sixteen years later again fell upon the exposed settlement and murdered many of the settlers.

Matthias filled many offices in the town, the most important being that of constable and selectman. The office of constable seems to have been singularly different in its duties from the office at the present, the principal duty then being the collection of rates or taxes for the settlement. The last time he held the office was in 1684, when he was 72 years old. But he lived so far from that part which came to be the centre of the town that very extended or long continued execution of the duties of town office must have been very difficult for him. He seems to have been one of those strong men who naturally draw others around them. Justinian Holden took land and built a house near him. Nicholas Hutchins, who married his wife's sister, sold out his property at Lynn and bought land adjoining to his on the south and settled upon it. Simon Stone, afterwards known as Deacon Stone, came from Watertown, bought land adjoining his, and married his daughter Sarah. And John Stone, brother to the Deacon, also came and bought land near by. These were the ancestors of numerous families whose descendants are scattered throughout the United States.

Matthias was not a learned man; none of the pioneers of Groton were; but he had as much education as the people of his time of the middle class usually had. It is shown that he signed his will with a mark. But his will was evidently made only a short time before his death, when he was doubtless disabled by sickness, for there are in existence records and returns made and signed by him, and as he filled the office of constable for several years, and was tax collector by virtue of his office, he must necessarily have been able to write sufficiently to keep accounts. It is to be hoped, however, that his orthography was not worse than that of some who kept the records of the town.

On the 12th day of January, 1688–9, probably feeling that his days were drawing to a close, he called to his assistance his friend Jonas Prescott, and dictated his will, which was probably written by Prescott, and is as follows:

JONAS PRESCOTT.

His wife survived him many years. She appears to have been a householder in 1692, when the garrisons were formed for the common defence. Probably she continued to keep house for many years at the old homestead. In the latter part of her life she seems to have made her home with her son Samuel, who perhaps took charge of the homestead before he moved to Lunenburg. She made her will, which is dated Dec. 5, 1716, and was proved March 7, 1717, so that she must have died between those dates, but the exact time is not known. Her will is as follows:

In the name of God Amen the fifth Day of December 1716: Mary ffarnworth widow of Mathias ffarnworth of Groaten in the Countey of middlsix in the provence of the masachusets bay in New England Deceased Beeing very sick and week in boddy but of Parfit mind and memory Thanks be given unto God for it: therfore calling unto minde the mortality of my bodey and knowing that is Appointed for all men once to Dye: Do make and ordain this my last will and testament, that is to say, principally, and first of all i Give and Recomend my soul into the hands of God that gave it: and my body I Recomend to the Earth to be buried in Decent Condition buiriall at the Discretion of my Executor nothing Doubting but at the General Resurection I shall Reseaume the same again by the mighty pouer of god. And as touching such worldly Estate wheare with it hast plesed god to bless me in this life I give Demise and Dispose of the same in the following maner—And form: Imprimis: I give to my well beeloved son Benjamin ffarnworth sixteen pounds payd for him to Justinian holdin for land in the year 1688. And the year folowing one years bord which is ten pounds. And one acre of medow leying in the South medow which shall lie ajoyning to the six acors willed to him by his father Mathyas ffarnworth Deceased. Item I Give to my well Beloved son samuel ffarnworth whom I create constitute mak and ordain my sole Executor of this my last will and testament all and singular my Great Bible to gather with my household goods Debts and moveable efects by him freely to bee posesed and injoyed. The will is apparently in the handwriting of Daniel Farnsworth, and the signature is the writing of Ephraim Sawtell. This will seems to have been made after consultation with the family. Deacon Daniel Farnsworth, son of John, and her grandson, was one of the witnesses, and Samuel Thatcher, husband of her daughter Mary, was another. He had probably come up from Watertown to visit her in her last sickness. Her mention of her "Great Bible," which she gives to her son Samuel, with whom she lived, as her last blessing, gives a view of her simple faith that should be appreciated by her descendants.

MATTHIAS FARNSWORTH, b. 1612, prob. in or near Farnworth, Lancastershire, Eng.; m. prob. as his second wife, Mary, daut. of George Farr of Lynn, Mass. He was a weaver by occupation; freeman, 16 May, 1670. He died 21 Jan. 1688–9. She died 1717. The great probabilities are that his first three children were by his first wife, as his wife Mary, in her will, makes her first bequest to "my well beloved son Benjamin," which was prob. her first born living son at that time. His children, being 2nd generation in America, are as follows:

1. ELIZABETH, b. 1647, prob. in England, possibly in Lynn, Mass.; m. 16 Jan. 1667, James Robertson (or Robinson); he was b. 1632; he d. 8 Dec. 1720; she d. 22 Dec. 1729, ae. 82.

2. MATTHIAS, b. 1649; m. 1681, Sarah Nutting, daut. of John and Sarah; she b. 29 May, 1663; he d. abt. 1693. She m. (2) 16 Dec. 1698, John Stone; he b. 23 July, 1658, son of Simon and Mary (Whipple) Stone of Watertown, Mass.

3. JOHN, b. about 1651–2; m. 8 Dec. 1686, Hannah Aldis of Dedham, Mass.; she b. 4 July, 1666. He d. 17 Oct. 1729.

4. BENJAMIN, b. (the "Prescott Memorial" says he was born about 1667; if so, he was the seventh child instead of the fourth). He m. 1695, Mary Prescott, daut. of Jonas and Mary (Loker) Prescott; she b. 3 Feby. 1674. He d. 15 Aug. 1733.

5. JOSEPH, b. 16 Nov. 1657, in Lynn, Mass.; d. 31 Oct. 1674, unm.

6. MARY, b. 11 Oct. 1660, in Lynn, Mass.; m. 11 April, 1676, Samuel Thatcher of Watertown, Mass.; he b. 20 Oct. 1648, d. 21 Oct. 1726. She d. 17 Aug. 1725.

7. SARAH, b. about 1663–4, prob. in Groton, Mass.; m. Simon Stone of Watertown, and brother of John, who m. wid. of Matthias Farnsworth, Jr. She d. 16 Sept. 1731; he d. 19 Dec. 1741, ae. 85 years, 3 months, 11 days.

8. Samuel, b. 8 Oct. 1669; m. 12 Dec. 1706, Mary Whitcomb, wid. of Simon Willard. Samuel d. 1726–7.

9. Abigail, b. 17 Jan. 1671; m. John Hutchins, her cousin, b. 3 June, 1668.

10. Jonathan, b. 1 June, 1675; m. 1698, Ruth Shattuck, b. 24 June, 1668. He d. 16 June, 1748.

11. Joseph 2nd, b. 1677; d. 20 Feby. 1687.

We will now follow the line of each of his children.

ELIZABETH FARNSWORTH.

Elizabeth Farnsworth,[2] (the first child of Matthias[1]) was b. 1647, prob. in England, possibly in Lynn, Mass.; m. 16 Jan. 1667, James Robertson (or Robinson, the name is spelled both ways). He was an original proprietor of Groton, Mass., and had a "seven acre" right, and lived north of the present village of Groton. So far as the records show they had but one child, viz: 3d Gen.

1.* 1. Elizabeth, b. 3 Oct. 1668, in Groton; m. 4 Jan. 1685, William Lakin of Groton, b. 6 May, 1665; he d. 18 March, 1735.

Note.—William Lakin, the ancestor, died 10 Dec. 1672, aged 90 or 91 years. He was frm. 1670. His wife's name is not given, neither are the names of his children. But tradition says he was grandfather of Lieut. William and Seargt. John, whose mother married William Martin. The histories of Reading and Groton, and Savage's Gen. Dic., somewhat conflict in dates.

William Martin, one of the earliest settlers of Reading, Mass., selectman 1647, '48 and '51, married in Groton, Mary, wid. of William Lakin. Butler says he d. 26 March, 1672, ae. about 76. Mary, his wife, d. 14 Aug. 1669. Savage says his will, dated 6 March, 1672, and proved 1st April, following, makes mention of his wife's children, Lieut. William and Seargt. John, children of William Lakin. So far as the record goes we have:

1. Lieut. William, b. ——; m. Lydia Brown, daut. of Abraham.
2. Seargt. John, b. ——; m. Mary ——.

Lieut. William Lakin and wife, Lydia Brown, had issue in Reading, Mass.:

1. Lydia, b. 1650.
2. Mary, b. 1652.
3. William, b. 1655; d. young.
4. John, b. 1657.
5. Jonathan, b. 28 June, 1661.

1.

WILLIAM LAKIN and his wife Elizabeth Robertson, had issue in Groton, Mass.: 4th Gen.

2.* 1. WILLIAM, b. 2 Sept. 1686; m. Miriam ——; he d. 14 April, 1755.

3.* 2. JAMES, b. about 1690; m. 12 Feby. 1717, Elizabeth Williams, daut. of Thomas and Elizabeth. She b. 21 Feby. 1694.

4. 3. HANNAH, b. 6 Feby. 1694.

5.* 4. LYDIA, b. 14 Jan. 1697; m. 26 Dec. 1728, Jonathan Sheple, son of John and Lydia. He b. 1 Sept. 1700; he d. 4 Nov. 1744.

6.* 5. JOHN, b. 31 March, 1700; m. (1) Sarah —; (2) 27 Oct. 1729, Lydia Parker, b. 30 Oct. 1711.

7.* 6. ISAAC, b. 11 Dec. 1702; m. 27 Jan. 1726, Elizabeth Shattuck, daut. of John and Mary (Blood) Shattuck[2], b. 1705–6.

And at Groton he had:

6. ABRAHAM, b. 10 Jan. 1664; d. young.
7. WILLIAM, b. 6 May, 1665; m. Elizabeth Robertson, (above).
8. ABRAHAM, b. 11 Sept. 1667; m. Abigail. (See Bond, 119).
9. ELIAS, b. 8 Jan. 1669.

Lieut. William Lakin died 22 Feby. 1700.

SEARGT. JOHN LAKIN and wife Mary, had issue:

1. MARY, b. ——; m. 18 July, 1674, Henry Willard, and settled in Lancaster. (See Willard).
2. SARAH, b. 4 Feby. 1661–2; m. 1691, Benjamin Willard, the 8th son of Major Simon, and settled in Sudbury.
3. WILLIAM, b. 12 May, 1664.
4. ABIGAIL, b. 13 March, 1667.
5. JOSEPH, b. 14 April, 1670; m. Abigail.
6. BENJAMIN, b. 6 Nov. 1672; m. Elizabeth.
7. JOSIAH, b. 14 Sept. 1675; m. Lucy.

Seargt. John Lakin died 21 March, 1697.

2.

William Lakin and his wife Miriam, had issue in Groton, Mass.: 5th Gen.

8.* 1. William, b. 22 May, 1732; m. (1) 27 Feby. 1756, Priscilla Ames, daut. of John and Elizabeth; she b. 24 April, 1739. He m. (2) 2 Feby. 1758, Anna Gragg.

MATTHIAS FARNSWORTH, JR.

Matthias Farnsworth, Jr.,[2] (Matthias,[1]) the first son and second child, was born 1649, and married 1681, Sarah Nutting, daut. of John and Sarah, b. 29 May, 1663. John Nutting was an original proprietor of Groton, holding a "seventeen acre" right, and lived directly north of the place where James brook crosses the Groton Main Street. His house was near the brook, and was one of the most ancient of the garrisons of the town, and not very far from the garrison house of Captain James Parker, on the southerly side of the brook.

It is not certain where Matthias, Jr., lived, but the uniform tradition has been that he built a house and lived in it, about a quarter of a mile southerly from his father's house, on the same side of the way toward "the mill." A Matthias Farnsworth was living there in 1830, and it used to be said that it had been occupied by one of that name from Matthias Farnsworth, Jr., down. He probably continued to reside at the place described until his death, which took place about 1693, as his inventory is dated 8 Nov. 1693, and he must have been dead before that date. His widow Sarah was appointed administratrix of his estate, 6 Dec. 1698.

As to the exact time of his death, uncertainty exists. He was alive 17 March, 1692, when, as it appears by the records, he was assigned to the Farnsworth garrison, then organized for defence against the Indians. His death undoubtedly occurred during those disturbances caused by the Indian wars —perhaps in consequence of them; and it is quite probable that the inventory was made soon after his death, which, in that case, occurred not long before 8 Nov. 1693. Sarah, his widow, caused the inventory to be made, but she did nothing further with it until 6 Dec. 1698, when she applied for the appointment as administratrix of his estate. She was thereupon appointed, and Deacon Simon Stone and his brother John, to whom she was married ten days later, were the sureties upon her bond.

The settlement of the estate was doubtless made in anticipation of her marriage with John Stone, as the appointment of administratrix was made, the inventory was filed, and her final account was presented and allowed, all on the same day. She married John Stone at Concord, 16 Dec. 1698.

Matthias, Jr., did not live long enough to display his personal qualities, so that they can be distinguished very clearly, but he held several town offices, and appears to have been a man of ability. He served under Major Willard in King Philip's war in 1675, in an expedition to Brookfield. His children, so far as can be learned from the records, which are very obscure and brief, are as follows: 3d Gen.

1. 1. JOSEPH, b. 17 Jan. 1682; d. 2 Feby. 1682.

2.* 2. EBENEZER, b. about 1684; m. 17 April, 1707, Elizabeth Whitney, daut. of Joshua and Abigail (Tarball) Whitney of Watertown.* She b. about 1686. They

3.* 3. JOSIAH, b. 24 Feby. 1687; m. March, 1719–20, Mary Pierce, daut. of Ephraim, she b. 9 Aug. 1696; he d. Sept. 1744. It is said he m. (1) 1 June, 1710, Mary Green, wid. of Jonathan Nutting, who had no ch.

4. 4. SARAH, b. 1688; married Jonathan Shedd. He married 13 April, 1722, Sarah Barron, and Sarah Farnsworth must have been his first wife.

5. 5. MATTHIAS, b. 6 Aug. 1690. About 1704, probably in August of that year, he was taken prisoner by the Indians and carried into Canada, where he was delivered to the French. There is nothing in the Groton records showing when or how he was captured. He was long supposed to be dead, but after some time his name appeared in a list of prisoners in the hands of the French in Canada. For more than twenty years after this young man's birth the colony was subject to Indian raids and to the loss of children, for the capture of which the Indians seemed to have a peculiar fancy—perhaps led to it by finding a better market for them among the French than they did for adults. It was during that time that the children of William Longley and Thomas Tarball were carried off. (See Butler's Groton, p. 96; also Bond's Watertown). By the parish records of Montreal it appears that he was baptized into the Roman Catholic Church there, and the record as made in French, gives his name as Matthias Claude Farnet. The name Claude seems to have been given him by his godfather, Claude de Ramezay, who was probably a gentleman connected with the Government, then under the dominion of the French King. The name Farnet, is the approximate spelling by the French authorities of the name, doubtless pronounced Farnoth by the young prisoner. He was naturalized at Montreal, and he married, as shown by the records, Catherine Charpentier, by whom he had nine children. Although they can be identified with very little uncertainty, the name has been by the church authorities of that region most marvelously varied. Young Matthias, about fourteen years old when carried off, had probably acquired the rudiments of an English education; but he soon, evidently, fell into an association of French that had little, if any, education of any kind. So the Parish authorities, as the children were baptized and married, spelled the name as each one fancied; and they give us Farnet, Farnef, Pharnef and Phaneuf. His descendants under these transformations of the name are numerous, and some of them are to be found among the French-Canadian emigrants into the United States.

Matthias, Jr., prob. had other children, and that

Dr. Caleb Pierce and his wife Sarah E. Farnsworth,[6] had issue: 7th Gen.

1. William Cornelius, b. 22 Feby. 1828, d. 13 Nov. 1860.

2. James Farnsworth, b. 8 April, 1830, in Madrid, St. Lawrence county, N. Y.

From his early years he evinced great fondness for study. Applying himself assiduously, he was fitted for the St. Lawrence Academy, and by private study for the Sophomore in Yale College. But his aspirations after a collegiate course were not to be realized in consequence of sickness, which obliged him to seek rest from literary pursuits. After being restored to physical vigor, he turned his attention to the study of law. For fifteen months he pursued his legal studies in the office of Hon. Henry L. Knowles of Potsdam, N. Y. He afterward went to Troy and completed his law study in the office of Hon. Job Pierson, M. C., and William A. Beach, brilliant lights of the American bar. In 1851 he was admitted to the bar at Albany. His health requiring a change of climate, he removed to St. Augustine, Fla., practiced his profession three years, occupying an office with the Hon. Isaac H. Bronson, then U. S. Judge for the Eastern District of Florida. Being interested in politics, he started into the arena in the memorable campaign of 1852, and took the field in behalf of his relative, Franklin Pierce, making stirring speeches, contributing good articles for the press, assisting to make the Presidential canvass successful, extending his fame throughout the State of Florida. He returned to New York in 1856 with renewed strength, locating in Canton, St. Lawrence county, and while there, the war cloud that had long been gathering, burst in all its fury over our beloved land, and the great Rebellion of 1861 was the result. Mr. Pierce was devoted to the Union cause; he stirred the country by his patriotic addresses before large assemblages, and assisted in raising troops for the field. In 1862 he was a candidate on the Union ticket for an important office in St. Lawrence county, and in favor of a war policy, and was elected by over a thousand majority. In the fall of 1865 he removed to New York City and formed a law partnership with the late Hon. John VanBuren, who dying soon after, he formed a partnership with Robert Sewell, to which was soon after added the name of George P. Sheldon, under the firm name of Sewell, Pierce & Sheldon. In 1866 he removed to Brooklyn, and in 1867 was elected to the State Senate from the Second District by 4,000 majority; re-elected again in 1869, 1876, 1885 and 1887. He served on many important committees during his senatorial career. In 1885 he delivered an eulogy on Gen. Grant and in 1887 another on Gen. Logan, before the Legislature, which were of very high order. On 9 Feby., 1891, Mr. Pierce was appointed by Gov. Hill, Supt. of the Insurance Dept. of the State of New York, as successor of the Hon. 588. 1. Jonathan Gosman, born 21 Jan. 1832, (his only child); m. Sarah V. Gourley, in 1856.

He entered the army in the War of the Rebellion, and was appointed Lieutenant-Colonel, and made Quartermaster of the Fourth Army Corps. He served in that capacity with the Army of the Potomac during 1862 and 1863. In 1863 and 1864 he accompanied the Quartermaster General of the Army through a long inspection tour. In 1864 and 1865, to the close of the war, he was Chief Quartermaster of the Department of West Virginia. He was an able and very efficient officer. The following account of him is taken from the "Public Service, State of New York," published by Osgood & Co., 1883:

JONATHAN G. FARNSWORTH, ADJUTANT-GENERAL.

"Major-General Farnsworth, Adjutant-General of the State of New York, was born at Elmira, Chemung County, New York, January 21, 1832. He is a son of the late Rev. Marshall L. Farnsworth and Joanna B. Gosman. His paternal ancestors were among the earliest arrivals of the Pilgrim Fathers in Massachusetts. His mother was descended from the earliest Dutch settlers of New York, coming in a direct line from Rev. Laurentius Van Gaasbeeck, the first clergyman of the New Netherlands. His education was mainly obtained at the Ithaca and Albany Academies, supplemented by a year's study at Pittsfield, Massachusetts. For many years he has been engaged in the wholesale lumber business at Albany, N. Y., as a member of the firm of J. O. Towner & Company. In politics General Farnsworth is a Democrat. On May 1, 1878, he was appointed one of the Commissioners of Washington Park in the City of Albany, and still serves as such, his term not expiring until May 1, 1887. General Farnsworth's army service during the War of the Rebellion was notable and brilliant. He was appointed Captain and Assistant Quartermaster of United States Volunteers by President Lincoln, April 14, 1862, and assigned to duty in the army of the Potomac at White House, Virginia, during May and June of that year. From July, 1862, until August, 1863, he was Chief Quartermaster of the Fourth Army Corps, Major-General E. D. Keyes, commanding. He accompanied General M. C. Meigs, Quartermaster General of the United States Army, on an inspection tour from August, 1863, until January, 1864, and was with him at Chattanooga during the siege and its closing scenes, including the battles of Mission Ridge and Lookout Mountain. He was in charge of the Quartermaster's Department at Wheeling, the principal supply depot of the Department of West Virginia, from February, 1864, to November, 1864, and was Chief Quartermaster of the Department of West Virginia, with headquarters at Cumberland, Md., from November, 1864, to September, 1865. He was mustered out of the United States Service on his own application, October 23, 1865. On March 13, 1865, he was brevetted Major, Lieutenant-Colonel and Colonel. From September 21, 1868, until July 29, 1871, he was Colonel Commanding the Tenth Regiment, National Guard of the State of New York, located in the City of Albany. He was appointed Adjutant-General of the State of New York by Gov. Cleveland on the first of January, 1883."

He resided at 26 Elk Street, Albany, N. Y. He died 6 April, 1895, at 9:30 p. m., at the Arlington Hotel, Washington, D. C. He was stricken with paralysis at 11:30 Friday night, and never recovered consciousness, having gone to Washington six weeks before in the hope of being able to drive a protracted attack of the la grippe from his system, but death claimed him and the end of his honorable career came. His remains were taken to Albany, accompanied by his wife, daughter Emma J., and Mr. S. B. Towner. The funeral occurred April 10, at half past three o'clock. Services were held in St. Peters Church, Bishop Doane and Rector W. W. Battershall officiated. The Adjutant-General's department was closed for the day, and Gov. Morton and nearly all the high military officers of the State were present, but in a private capacity. George S. Dawson Post, No. 63, G. A. R., and the members of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, of which Gen. Farnsworth was a member, attended the funeral in a body. President Cleveland, Secretary of War Lamont, Senator Hill and others sent messages of condolence to Mrs. Farnsworth; and the President and Secretary of War were represented at the obsequies by Major Arnold and Captain Blunt of the U. S. Ordnance Department, who are stationed at the Watersville Arsenal. The pall-bearers, numbering sixteen, included seven persons who have represented the State as Adjutant-Generals. They were Adjt.-Gen. E. A. McAlpin, Gen. Frederick Townsend, Gen. Franklin Townsend, Gen. John B. Woodward, Gen. Thomas H. McGrath, Gen. Seldon E. Marion, Gen. John E. Rathbone, Gen. Horatio King, Gen. Charles Tracey, George S. Field, Judge Isaac H. Maynard, Erastus Corning, Dean Sage, Jacob H. Ten Eyck, A. Bleecker Banks, and Supt. of Insurance, James Farnsworth Pierce. His remains were interred in the Rural Cemetery. Peace be unto him. At his house, 26 Elk Street, the body reposed in a black cloth coffin upon which was an American flag, carried in the corps in which the General served in the War. A bunch of lillies of the valley, mignonette and violets tied with purple ribbons were upon the flag, and stretched across were two long palms. The floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. —Condensed from numerous press clippings.

JOHN FARNSWORTH.

John Farnsworth,[2] (Matthias,[1]) the second son and the third child, was born 1651–2. He was in general estimation the ablest, as he certainly was the most prominent, of Matthias' sons. He m. 8 Dec. 1686, Hannah Aldis, b. 4 July, 1666, in Dedham, Mass., daut. of John and Sarah (Eliot) Aldis. Sarah Eliot was daut. of Philip Eliot, Jr., of Roxbury, whose father, Philip, was brother of the Rev. John Eliot, known as the "Apostle to the Indians."

John Farnsworth built a house and lived on the place in the southerly part of Groton, now owned by Nathan F. Culver, and formerly known as the "Major Moors place." It is marked "B. Moors" on Butler's map of Groton.

He was a man of great force of character, and was held in such high esteem by his fellow-townsmen that he was, after he arrived at a suitable age, almost continually in public office. From 1709 to 1715, he was a Deacon in the church. For many years he was one of the Selectmen, and he represented the town in the Colonial Legislature in the years 1709, '10, '12 and '13. Previous to this, in 1707, he and his brother Samuel, with others, notified the government that they intended to move from Groton on account of losses suffered from incursions of the Indians. See Green's Indian War, p. 104. But from his remaining there he must have given up the idea, for he continued to labor for the good of the town.

In 1689, at a time of great distress in the town, he united with Josiah Parker, James Parker and Jonas Prescott, to buy grain from the towns-people for money, so as to enable them to pay their taxes. He filled many offices of influence and importance. Very early, perhaps about 1680 or 1690, he built a mill—it may be, in connection with one John Page—on his land lying by James' brook, a little east from where the road passing by the "B. Moors place" crosses the brook. The ruins of the old dam were still visible in 1883, though the mill itself has not been in existence for one hundred and fifty years or more, perhaps not since the time when he sold it to Abraham, the grandfather of Benjamin Moors, 5 Feby. 1717. In his deed to Moors, he calls it an "old saw mill," and conveys three quarter parts of it. His will is dated Oct. 13, 1729. He died 17 Oct. 1729. His children born in Groton, Mass.: 3d Gen.

It is remarkable that though John Farnsworth had five sons, three of whom lived to be married, he had but one grandson, and it died in childhood; so that there are no living descendants of his, bearing the name of Farnsworth.

He, with his brother Philander, went West in 1819, penetrated into the Indian country, and after staying awhile at Prairie du Chien, went to Fort Snelling, an important U. S. fort and trading post. Here they engaged or contracted with the North West Fur Company, as traders with the Indians, which business they followed several years. They went every winter to the Indian settlements where they encamped. Being obliged, by the Indian regulations, to take a young squaw for a companion during their stay, the result was he took one for his companion during life. He d. 15 Jan. 1851; his wid. m. 14 April, 1851, Owen Edmonston, whose 1st wife was Phidelia, a sister of Z. W. See No. 163.

162. 5. Philander, b. 17 Sept. 1801. While with the Indians trading, he m. 1823, an Indian girl, Nah-he-no-wenah, (or spirit of the moon), daughter of Kee-e-hei, (or the man that flies), a Dacotah chief, by his squaw, Moz-ah-win-dag-a-win, (or checkered iron). She was born about 1804, and d. 29 March, 1867. He was killed by the Indians 11 Aug. 1862.

When they were married first it was in conformity to the Indian custom; when they were married again in conformity to Christian usage, she took and assumed the name of Mary. For many years Philander was in the service of the U. S.

Govt., as Indian Agent, and to oversee their agricultural affairs. His writings, reports, etc., may be seen in the Patent Reports, 1849, 1850, 1851, and also in Schoolcraft's History of the Indian Tribes. He seems to have had the confidence of the Government, which he served faithfully, and was from 1837 to 1855, at Fort Snelling, previous to its being abandoned and sold by the Government in 1855, when he removed to Redwood, Minn., overseeing the Indian farming. When the Indian outbreak and massacre occurred on the 10th Aug. 1862, he was one of the first victims, the Indians firing upon his house early in the morning before he was up, and before he was aware of their intentions. He succeeded, however, in escaping from his house unperceived and hid himself during the day; but not considering himself safe, he attempted at night to make his way to Fort Ridgeley, about twelve miles distant, and succeeded in reaching within four miles of the Fort, when he unexpectedly met two Indians, by whom he was killed. At the time of the outbreak only his wife and one daughter were with him, the other two daughters and Mr. Eli Pettijohn, the husband of one of them, were living at Shackopee. Hiram, his son, was at the homestead, and Lawrence T., was in the Army of the Potomac, being in the company of Berdan's Sharp Shooters. As the Indians had declared an exterminating war against the Whites and all who had any white blood in them, and as every road, bridge and ferry, was strictly guarded by the Indians, the whole family would in all probability have been murdered had it not been for the assistance and strategy of Philander's wife's sister. They were made prisoners and compelled to doff their garbs of civilization and put on those of the Indian. After awhile this female succeeded in finding three canoes, and secreted them for the purpose of aiding them to make their escape. In a few days, when the warriors were off fighting the United States troops under Gen. Sibley, she succeeded in sending them off, but in great haste, so that they were not very well provided for so perilous an undertaking. There was no man, and only one boy eight years old. They were seven days in making their way to Fort Ridgeley, a long distance by canoe, enduring incredible hardship and suffering. As the river was at that time very low, and many falls and rapids, they were obliged to go to shore ten or fifteen times a day to pull and work their canoe over the rapids and sand bars. They had nothing to eat during the whole voyage, only what they could pick up.

247. 7. Ruth A., b. 12 Sept. 1826; m. 21 Feby. 1849, William L. Cowan of Utica, N. Y., b. 5 March, 1813, in Glasgow, Lanarkshire, Scotland. Came to America in 1820 with his father, who had served in the Peninsular War under Wellington, and his grandfather was Capt. of a company of the celebrated Scotch Greys, and was wounded at the battle of Waterloo. His maternal grandfather was a Naval Captain under Lord Nelson, and was wounded at the battle of Trafalgar. By this it will be perceived that Capt. William L. Cowan is from a military ancestry, and he was an enthusiastic lover of military life. Upon the first call for 75,000 men for the defence of the Capitol by the President, he enlisted a company of 110 men, was commissioned Captain, proceeded to Albany, was attached to the 14th Regt. N. Y. Vols., and mustered into service 17 May, 1861. The regiment soon left Albany for Washington, and stationed at and near Arlington Heights; performed picket duty until the spring of 1862, when Gen. McClellan made his GRAND MOVE toward Richmond via. Newport News, Yorktown and the Chickahominy. The regiment performed picket duty on the Chickahominy up to their arm-pits in water, and Capt. Cowan frequently had to visit his men at the outposts on a raft. He was always at the head of his company, having never been absent a single day, and participated in all the battles in which his regiment was engaged, which included the battles of Gen. McClellan's Campaign,—the seven days fighting during his disastrous change of base from the Chickahominy to James River at Harrison's Landing. The most prominent battles were Big Bethel, Yorktown, Hanover Court House, Mechanicsville, Gaines' Hill, Savage Station, Turkey Bend, Malvern Hill, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. When the regiment was mustered out of service in May, 1863, it had lost half of its members, and of the 110 men composing Capt. Cowan's Co., (Co. D.) only 48 remained. He resided 1870, Darien, N. Y.

BENJAMIN FARNSWORTH.

Benjamin Farnsworth,[2] (Matthias,[1]) the third son and the fourth child, was born about 1653. In the Prescott Memorial his birth is given 1667. If this is correct, and I am inclined to think it is, as his wife Mary was b. 3 Feby. 1674, making him seven years instead of twenty-one years older than his wife, I think he was the seventh child, as Sarah, his sister, who married Simon Stone, was b. 1663, and Samuel, the next one as we have it, was b. 8 Oct. 1669; so that very probable Benjamin was born 1667, as stated by Mr. Prescott. However, be that as it may, we will place him in the record as the fourth child.

He m. 1695, Mary Prescott, b. 3 Feby. 1674, in Lancaster, Mass. She was daut. of Jonas and Mary (Loker) Prescott.* She d. 28 Oct. 1735.

Benjamin Farnsworth built a house and lived on the easterly side of the road running on the westerly side of the broad meadow, a little south of the residence of the late Abel Farnsworth. He owned a large stretch of land west of the meadow, and southerly of the road from Farmer's Row, across the meadow to the first parish meeting-house. His house was standing until about 1830, but in the later years it was unoccupied. Mr. C. B. Farnsworth of Pawtucket, R. I., in his Monograph, speaking of this house, says; "When a boy I went through it many times, with a wondering fear of the memories that haunted it. At that time the most, perhaps all, of his farm was held by his great-grandsons, Ezra and Abel Farnsworth. On the westerly side of the road on which Benjamin's house stood, and a little further south, on the spot occupied by S. Kendall, was the residence of John Longley, his brother-in-law, the husband of his wife's sister, Sarah Prescott."

*See Prescott Memorial, p. 42, for courtship of Jonas and Mary.

Benjamin Farnsworth held several town offices, and was Selectman, but he appears to have been less a leader and adviser of men than his brother John. He and his wife were church members, and their children were all baptized. For some time in the latter part of his life his health, and with it his mind was impaired, and his wife was appointed guardian for the necessary care of his estate. Their children as follows, born in Groton, Mass.: 3rd Gen.

1* 1. MARY, b. 5 Jan. 1696; m. 1718, Lieut. William Tarball of Groton, b. 10 June, 1689, in Groton, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Blood) Tarball, the Town Clerk of Groton. She d. 29 July, 1784.

2. 2. MARTHA, b. 9 Jan. 1698, d. 11 Feby. 1698.

3* 3. BENJAMIN, b. 16 Jan. 1699; m. (1) 1726, Patience ———; she d. 10 July, 1733–4, aged 30; m. (2) Rebecca Pratt of Malden, Mass. She d. 1 Oct. 1756; he d. of small pox 19 Sept. 1757.

4* 4. ISAAC, b. 14 July, 1701; m. April, 1723, Sarah Page, daut. of Samuel Page of South Carolina, see Bond's Watertown, p. 383. Isaac lived in Lunenburg, where he held various offices of trust; was Town Clerk ten years. He d. 17 Dec. 1744.

5* 5. EZRA, b. 17 Jan. 1703; m. 25 April, 1726, Elizabeth Lakin, b. 23 Aug. 1705, daut. of Joseph. She d. 1732; m. (2) 29 Sept. 1733, in Concord, Abigail Pierce, b. 10 Nov. 1710, daut. of Ephraim and Mary (Whitney) Pierce. Ezra was a blacksmith by trade, was Lieutenant in the Militia. He built a house on his father's farm, at the place where his grandson, Ezra, lived afterwards. It was on the southerly side of the road that runs from "Farmer's Row" across broad meadow to the first parish meeting-house. He d. 10 June, 1788; his wid. d. 8 Jan. 1800.

6* 6. Amos, b. 27 Nov. 1704; m. 20 Nov. 1735, Lydia Longley, b. 26 June, 1716, daut. of John* and Sarah (Prescott) Longley, and cousin of Amos. He is said to have been a very tall man, six feet and four inches high, and of very striking appearance. He built the house and lived on the place that was subsequently occupied by his son, Major Amos Farnsworth, on the road leading from Groton Centre to Page's bridge, about two miles from the old Groton meeting-house. He was a man of much energy and well educated for a farmer of his time. Having a large family to support, when the British government, after the conquest of Canada, opened the territory for settlement, and offered such terms to settlers of English stock that there seemed to be so much to be gained by accepting them, he went to Nova Scotia. He left his family in Groton, but possibly took with him one or more sons. There he

*Note.—John Longley, 27 July, 1694, when eleven years of age, had seen his father and mother and all the rest of the family, except two sisters, murdered by the Indians in their attack on Groton. He and his sisters were taken to Canada and turned over to the French. He remained a prisoner in Canada for five years, when he was redeemed by his relatives from captivity. According to tradition he had become so accustomed to the savage life of his captors, by his residence among them, that he was unwilling to return, and force had to be used to compel him to leave them. However that may be, after his return—which was at the age of sixteen—he became one of the most prominent and well-to-do inhabitants of the town. He served in many offices of honor and trust, and for several years was the Town Clerk.

engaged in surveying and secured a grant of land at Granville near Annapolis. He erected buildings and got ready to remove his family there, when he placed agents on his land and returned to Groton for his wife and children. While he was absent his agents made such representations to the officials of the Nova Scotia government that the title to the lands was transferred to them. On arriving there with his family he found himself crowded out of his house. He made a petition to the government, then in Halifax,—a copy of which in his own hand writing is still in existence,—and had the matter been pursued he would probably have got his own again. But with his family on his hands, and Halifax, then practically a great deal further from Granville than it now is, it was impossible for him to wait for justice and he returned to Groton in 1774 with part of his family. The Revolutionary War soon followed, in which he took great interest, but on the 5 Dec. 1775, he and his youngest son, Benjamin, were both drowned by the upsetting of a boat in the Nashua river; his wife died 1810.

7* 7. Lydia, b. 26 Sept. 1706; m. 19 Dec. 1725, Samuel Tarball, b. 14 Oct. 1697, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Blood) Tarball of Groton; he d. 23 May, 1776; she d. 11 Nov. 1778.

8* 8. Aaron, b. 29 Aug. 1709; m. (1) 29 March, 1739, Hannah Barron; she d. about 1743; m. (2) 1744, Sarah ———; she d. about 1747; m. (3) 1749, wid. Elizabeth Parker; she d. 12 Dec. 1766, aged 47, and whose gravestone was erected by "Josiah Parker's children," her former husband, see Groton Epitaphs, p. 48. He m. (4) 16 June, 1767, Sarah Bennett, b. 1723. He d. July, 1769, and his wid.

m. (2) — Bolton; she d. 24 June, 1822, aged 99 yrs. 10 mo.

9. 9. MARTHA, b. May, 1711; m. 11 Oct. 1728, Capt. John Stevens; he probably lived in Townsend, but was buried in Groton; he d. 17 April, 1759.

10* 10. JONAS, b. 14 Oct. 1713; m. 1739, Thankful Ward of Worcester, Mass., she b. 15 Feby. 1712; she d. 1 May, 1799; he d. Dec. 1803. He was a joiner and lived on the "great road" to Boston, a little south of the old "Prescott place." He was interested in the immigration made by his brother Amos and some others of the family into Nova Scotia. Whether he went there himself or not, I am not certain; several of his children, however, joined the expedition, and it is not unlikely that he did so. It has not been an easy matter to get the records and followings into Nova Scotia.

11* 11. DEBORAH, b. 1715–16; m. 19 March, 1735, Samuel Bowers, Jr., he b. 21 Dec. 1711, he d. 16 Dec. 1768. Bowers kept a tavern in Groton at the place known as the "Champney House." Dr. A. S. Green thus speaks of Mr. Bowers in his "Groton Historical Series, No. 8," p. 4:

"The earliest tavern in Groton of which there is any positive record or knowledge, was kept by Samuel Bowers, Jr., in the house lately and for a long time occupied by the Champney family. Mr. Bowers was born in Groton, on Dec. 21, 1711, and according to his tombstone died on "the sixteenth day of December, Anno Domini, 1768. Half a hour after three of the clock in ye afternoon, and in the Fifty Eighth year of his age."

"He was first licensed in the year 1755, and was known in the neighborhood as "Land'urd Bowers," the innkeeper of that period being generally addressed by the title of landlord.

I do not know who succeeded him in his useful and important functions." Mr. C. B. Farnsworth, continuing, says in his Monograph: "It seems proper to remark that in the middle of the last century many of the most prominent citizens were licensed as retailers of spirits. Deacon Benjamin Bancroft, Deacon Isaac Farnsworth, Amos Lawrence, Ezra Farnsworth, Abraham Moors, Caleb Trowbridge, Jr., and others, were licensed as retailers; and they were among the best citizens of the place. Popular ideas have changed since then."

Isaac Farnsworth,[3] (Benjamin,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Sarah Page, had issue in Lunenburg, Mass.: 4th Gen.

27* 1. Isaac, b. 30 Nov. 1723; he lived in Groton, and was a respected citizen of that town in his time. He was Town Clerk from 1778 to 1781, when he was chosen the first representative to the General Court, under the constitution in 1781; declined an election to that office the next year, and was elected Town Clerk again in 1785, filling that position for three years. He was chosen Deacon of the church 31 Dec. 1773. He was an influential man in the town during the Revolutionary period. His recognized good sense and conscientious frankness, together with his courage to act according to his convictions, made him a prominent figure. In Jan. 1773, the Selectmen called a town meeting "to enquire into and consider the matters of grievance which the people of North America, and the inhabitants of this province in particular labor under, relating to the violation and infringement of their rights and liberties." A committee was appointed, of which he was one, that reported in two weeks afterwards with a spirit and energy not anywhere exceeded, see Butler's Groton, p. 118. At a subsequent meeting held in the town, 16 Dec. 1773, respecting the tea tax, he was again made a member of a committee to consider and report on the subject. That committee recommended the support of the people of Boston in their action, and at their recommendation the people voted unanimously to use no tea. On 3 Jan. 1775, he was appointed one of the important "Committee of Inspection" for the town, that was to see that the recommendations of the Provincial Congress of the preceding 5 Dec. 1774, were carried into effect, see Butler's Groton, p. 123. He m (1) 4 Dec. 1744, Anna Green, daut. of Eleazer and Anna (Tarball) Green of Groton, b. 23 July, 1725; she died; m. 28* 2. WILLIAM, b. 26 Feby. 1725; m. Elizabeth Rutherford, daut. of Rev. Robert, a Scotch-Irish clergyman of the Presbyterian denomination of Waldoboro, Maine. William lived in that part of Groton which was afterwards set off to Harvard or Shirley, but about 1760 he removed to Maine, and became a settler in the "Waldo purchase," at what has since been called Waldoboro. Here he became owner of a large tract of land and was one of the leaders of the new settlers. He was prominent among the defenders of his country during the Revolutionary War, in which he attained the rank of Colonel. Two of his sons, William Jr., and Robert, also served in that war, although quite young. William d. 22 Jan. 1806, and was buried in the old Waldoboro grave yard; his wife Elizabeth d. 15 March, 1809, aged 70.

Jonas went with his father into Nova Scotia and was living there when the Revolutionary War broke out. He had but one child born there when it became apparent that it had become necessary for him to take part with England in the approaching struggle, or to return to Groton and join his fortunes with the revolting colonies. He promptly chose the latter course, but he had much difficulty, and his family endured great suffering in doing so. He arrived, however, in April, 1776, at the paternal homestead and built him a house, about a quarter of a mile southerly from where his father lived, where the remainder of his family were born; he d. 16 July, 1805; his wife survived him many years and died 20 May, 1826.

Amos went with his father, when about eleven years old, to Nova Scotia, and returned with him to Groton in 1774. Directly on his return he united himself with a company of "Minute Men" that was organized at Groton under the command of Captain Henry Farwell for the defence of the popular rights. On the 19th day of April, 1775, word was brought to Groton of the advance of the British troops, upon Lexington and Concord. The company was immediately called upon to meet these "British Regulars" though it consisted only of young farmers collected from the fields. He joined his company and marched that night, expecting to meet the enemy at Concord. But they were too late to participate in the fight which took place that day, as the news of the advance of the "Regulars" did not in fact reach Groton until they had commenced their retreat toward Boston. Fortunately we have a diary of the main facts in this movement, kept by Amos Farnsworth at the time. He says:

We marched and came there [that is, to Concord], where some had been killed. Pulled on and came to Lexington, where much hurt was done to the houses by breaking glass and burning many houses, but they were forced to retreat though they were more numerous than we. And I saw many dead regulars by the way. Went into a house where the blood was half over shoes.

Thursday, April 20. Came to Cambridge in the forenoon. There were some men wanted to go to Charlestown. I went for one and viewed the Regulars, and found they were intrenching on Charlestown Hill.

His diary goes on giving an account of the daily duties and movements until "Friday ye 26," when he says:

At night I and about ten of our company marched with a party of men, betwixt two and three hundred, for Noddle's Island, headed by Col. Nixon. We marched through Mystic, Malden and to Chelsea.

Saturday, May ye 27. Went on Hog Island and brought off six horses, twenty-seven horned cattle and four hundred and eleven sheep.

About the middle of the afternoon went from Hog Island to Noddle's Island and set one house and barn on fire. Killed some horses and cattle; brought off two or three cows; one horse. I with five men got off the horse and before we got from Noddle's Island to Hog Island we were fired upon by a privateer schooner; but we crossed the river and about fifteen of us squatted down in a ditch on the marsh and stood our ground; and there came a company of Regulars on the march on the other side of the river and the schooner, and we had a hot fire until the Regulars retreated. But notwithstanding the bullets flew very thick not a man of us [was] killed. Surely God has a favor towards us, and he can save in one place as well as another. We left the Island about sunset and came to Chelsea, and on Saturday, about ten at night marched to Winnisimet ferry where there was a schooner and a sloop a firing with great fury upon us there; but thanks be to God that gave us the victory at this time for through his Providence the schooner that played upon us ran aground and we set fire to her and consumed her there, and the sloop received much damage in this engagement. We had not a man killed; but four wounded, and we hope all will recover. One of the four was a Townsend man belonging to our company. The bullet went through his mouth from one cheek to the other.

Thursday June ye 1. There were sheep and cattle and horses we hear, to ye amount of four or five hundred sheep, twenty or thirty cattle and a number of horses brought along that our people took from the Regulars off Noddles Island.

Friday, June 16. Nothing done in the forenoon. In the afternoon we had orders to be ready to march at six. Agreeable to orders our regiment paraded and about sunset we were drawn up, and had prayers, and about dusk marched for Bunker Hill under command of our own Col. Prescott. Just before we turned out of the road to go up Bunker's Hill, Charlestown, we were halted, and about sixty men were taken out of our battalion to go into Cnarlestown, I being one of them. Capt. Nutting headed us down to the town house. We set our sentinels by the water side. The most of us got in the Town House, but had orders not to shut our eyes. Our men marched to Bunker Hill and begun their entrenchments, and carried it on with the utmost vigor all night. Early in the morning I joined them.

Saturday June ye 17. The enemy appeared to be much alarmed on Saturday when they discovered our operations, and immediately began a heavy cannonading from a battery on Cop's Hill, Boston, and from the ships in ye harbor. We with little loss continued to carry on our work till ten o'clock, when we discovered a large body of the enemy crossing Charles River from Boston. They landed on a point of land about a mile eastward of our entrenchment and immediately disposed their army for an attack, previous to this they set fire to the town of Charlestown. It is supposed that the enemy intended to attack us under the cover of the smoke from the burning houses; the wind favoring them in such a design; while on the other side their army was extending northward towards the Mystic river with an apparent design of surrounding our men in the works, and cutting off any assistance intended for our relief. They were however in some measure counteracted in this design, and drew their army into closer order. As the enemy approached our men were not only exposed to the attack of a very numerous musquetry, but to a heavy fire from the battery on Cop's Hill, 4 or 5 men of war, several armed boats or floating batteries in Mystic River, and a number of field pieces. Notwithstanding we within the entrenchment, and at a breastwork without, sustained the enemy's attack with real bravery and resolution. Killed and wounded great numbers, and repulsed them several times; and after bearing for about two hours as severe and heavy a fire as perhaps ever was known, and many having fired away all their amunition, and having no reinforcement although there was a great body of men nie by, we were overpowered by numbers and obliged to leave the intrenchment, retreating about sunset to a small distance over Charlestown neck. N. B. I did not leave the intrenchment until after the enemy had got in. I then retreated about ten or fifteen rods. Then I received a wound in my right arm, the ball going through a little below the elbow, breaking the little shell bone. Another ball struck my back, taking off a piece of skin about as big as a penny; but I got to Cambridge that night.

The town of Charlestown I supposed to contain about 300 dwelling houses, a great number of which were large and elegant, besides 150 or 200 other buildings [These] are almost laid in ashes by the barbarity and wanton cruelty of that infernal villain Thomas Gage. Oh! the goodness of God in preserving my life though they fell on my right hand and on my left. . . . I was in great pain the first night with my wound.

Sunday June 18. I and Phineas Hubbard came to Mr. Watsons.

Monday June 19. Mr. Hubbard and I set out for home. Came as far as Lincoln; met our honored fathers. Got as far as Concord that night.

Tuesday June 20. We got home.

Here he makes a memorandum that "for a considerable length of time past" he could not keep up his journal on account of the wound in his arm, but under the date of August 14, he says: "Now I begin to write a little;" and he proceeds: "Monday August 14. Set out for Cambridge got there that day; found our company pretty well." From that day to August 24 nothing of interest is recorded. On that day he says:

About twelve o'clock I had my arm drest. Dr. Hart opened it nigh two inches down to the bone. About 3 in the afternoon Col. Prescott gave orders to march to Sewell's Point, and they marched, but I did not go with them because of my wound.

He remained with the army at Cambridge until Oct. 27, and his diary contains a record of the doings, in which, in consequence of his wound, he was an actor only to a limited extent. Concerning the battle of Bunker Hill, he used to say, that as the troops under Colonel Prescott were leaving the entrenchments at Bunker Hill they met General Putnam, who with a large body of men had remained "nie by," as Amos Farnsworth expressed it in his diary, but had not participated in the battle. Amos Farnsworth was very near the two commanders and distinctly heard the conversation between them. Colonel Prescott began by sharply asking General Putnam why he had not sent up reinforcements as he had promised. Putnam answered that he "could not drive the d——d dogs up." To this Colonel Prescott hotly responded: "Then why did you not lead them up? They would have followed you." See Prescott Memorial, p. 58, for further testimony.

On Tuesday, Dec. 5, 1775, his father and his brother Benjamin were both drowned by the upsetting of a boat in the Nashua river, and the whole care of the family devolved upon Amos. In the summer of 1776 he volunteered to go to the defence of Ticonderoga, in Colonel Reed's regiment, that was raised in the neighborhood of Groton for that purpose. He had served as a Corporal at Bunker Hill. He had done so well that he was made an Ensign—equivalent to a Second Lieutenant—in that expedition. He was afterwards, while holding a commission as First Lieutenant in a company of "Matrosses," commanded by William Swan, in Colonel Jonathan Reed's regiment, sent with some troops to New Jersey, where he performed effective service by his bravery and judgment and by his care of his men, with whom he was always popular.

His first commission as Ensign, or Second Lieutenant, was in the infantry. His next commission was in the artillery or "Matrosses," as that branch of service was called. His commission as First Lieutenant is as follows:

State of Massachusetts Bay. } The Major Part of the Council of Massachusetts Bay in New England.

SEAL.

To Amos Farnsworth, Gentleman, Greeting.

You being appointed First Lieutenant of a company of Matrosses (commanded by William Swan) raised in the Sixth Regiment of Militia in the County of Middlesex, whereof Jonathan Reed Esquire is Colonel to rank as Captain,—By Virtue of the Power vested in us, We do by these Presents (reposing special Trust and Confidence in your Loyalty, Courage and good Conduct,) Commission you accordingly.—You are therefore carefully and diligently to discharge the Duty of a First Lieut., in leading, ordering, and exercising said Company in Arms, both inferior Officers and Soldiers; and to keep them in good Order and Discipline; And they are hereby commanded to obey you as their first Lieut., and you are yourself, to observe and follow such Orders and instructions as you shall from Time to Time receive from the Major Part of the Council or your Superior Officers.

Given under our Hands, and the Seal of the said State, at Boston, the Nineteenth Day of October, in the Year of our Lord, 1778.

JOHN AVERY, Dy Secy.

After the close of the war, July 9, 1783, he was commissioned as "Captain of a company of Matrosses in the Brigade of Militia in the county of Middlesex." That company is the old Groton Artillery Company. The commission bears the signature of John Hancock as "Governor and Commander in Chief in and over the Commonwealth of Massachusetts." This company is still in existence. His next commission, signed by Samuel Adams as Governor, appoints him "Major of a Battalion of Artillery in the Second Brigade of the Third Division of the Militia of this Commonwealth comprehending the County of Middlesex," and is dated July 1, 1794.

Amos Farnsworth had the reputation of being an efficient and very popular officer. In addition to his military services he was for several years a deacon of the church in Groton, and he served the church in many business ways until old age diminished his powers. He died Oct. 29, 1847. His wife survived him but a few weeks, and died Dec. 11, 1847, aged ninety years.

Amos Farnsworth, with Samuel Lawrence, (the father of Amos and Abbott Lawrence), together with Bancroft, at the battle of Bunker Hill, were posted in the night before the battle at the extreme east of the line, to watch the ships of war lying off there, and report to Col. Prescott. They remained there until driven away by the guns of the vessels. He received a pension of $113.00 per annum from the Government for his Revolutionary services.

111. 10. Benjamin, b. 24 Oct. 1757. Was drowned with his father in Nashua river, 5 Dec. 1775.

(2) David Bill of Gilsum, N. H., and d. Nov. 1841.

164. 7. John, b. 13 July, 1761. He was a young man of great vigor and energy; served many campaigns in the army of the Revolution; was at Dorchester Heights, Dec. 1776; at Bennington, 1777; at White Plains,—as was also his brother James.—Was a Sergeant. Partly for the benefit of his health and partly to serve his country, he joined a 'privateer,' and died of yellow fever at the Island of Antigua, 22 March, 1783, unm. The following story of the Revolution is told in the Book of Locke's, p. 366, of his sister Eunice, as published in the Greenfield, (Mass.) Gazette, several years ago. The writer says:

"It is a bona fide fact, taken without amendation from the life of a mother in Israel, Mrs. Eunice Richards. It shows that there was an anti-British spirit in the women as well as in the men of 1776." Here is what she said: "Late in the afternoon of one of the last days of May, 1776, when I was a few months short of fifteen years old, notice came to Townsend, Mass., where my father used to live, that fifteen soldiers were wanted. The train band was instantly called out, and my brother that was next older than I, was one that was selected. He did not return till late at night, when we were all in bed. When I arose in the morning, I found my mother in tears, who informed me that my brother John was to march next day after to-morrow morning, at sunrise. My father was at Boston, in the Massachusetts Assembly. Mother said that though John was supplied with summer clothes, he must suffer for winter garments. There were, at this time, no stores, and no articles to be had, except such as each family could make itself. The sight of mother's tears always brought all the hidden strength of body and mind into action. I instantly asked what garments were needed. She replied, "pantaloons." Oh, if that is all, said I, we will spin and weave him a pair before he goes. "But," said mother, "the wool is on the sheep's back, and the sheep are in the pasture." I immediately turned to a younger brother and bade him take the salt dish and call them to the yard. Mother replied, "Poor child, there are no sheep shears within three miles and a half." I have some small shears in the loom, said I. "But you can't spin and weave it in so short a time." I am certain we can, mother. "How can you weave it?—there is a long web of linen in the loom?" No matter, I can find an empty loom. By this time the sound of the sheep made me quicken my steps towards the yard. I requested my sister to bring the wheel and cards, while I went for the wool. I went to the yard with my brother, and secured a white sheep, from which I sheared—with my loom shears—half enough for a web; we then let her go with the rest of her fleece. I sent the wool in by my little sister, and Luther ran for a black sheep, and held her while I cut off wool for my filling and half the warp, and then we allowed her to go with the remaining coarse part of the fleece." The rest of the narrative the writer would abridge by saying that the wool thus obtained was duly carded, spun, washed, sized and dried; a loom was found a few doors off, the web "got in" and wove, the cloth prepared, cut and made, two or three hours before the brother's departure; that is to say, in forty hours from commencement, without help from any modern improvements. The good old lady closed by saying: "I felt no weariness; I wept not; I was serving my country; I was relieving my poor mother; I was preparing a garment for my darling brother. The garment finished, I retired and wept till my overcharged and bursting heart was relieved." This brother was, perhaps, one of General Stark's soldier's, and with such a spirit to cope with, need we wonder that Burgoyne did not execute his threat "of marching through the heart of America."

363* 9. Rev. James Delap, b. 11 Sept. 1793; m. 1 Nov. 1825, Rebecca Miller Thayer Fogg of Braintree, Mass., (daut. of Dr. Daniel Fogg, a native of New Hampshire, a most worthy man and a good physician, but exceedingly deaf. He died of heart disease while walking in his garden, 1830, aged 71). She died 25 April, 1873.

Rev. James Delap Farnsworth fitted for college at the Groton Academy, and entered Harvard 1814. Grad. there A. B. 1818; A. M. and B. D. 1821, having studied Theology in the Cambridge Divinity School. He was ordained as an Orthodox Congregational Clergyman over the church at Oxford, N. H., 21 Jan. 1823. He was afterwards successively minister of churches of that denomination in Paxton, Boxboro, North Chelsea, and Bridgewater, all in Massachusetts; and he was, in the year 1853, Chaplain to the Senate of Mass.; and at the time of his death was pastor of the Cong. church in Scotland Parish, Bridgewater, Mass. He d. 12 Nov. 1854, very suddenly, on a Sunday morning, sitting at his study table, looking over the sermon which he was about to preach. He had preached the Sabbath before from the text, "It is finished", and had made preparation to preach that day from the words, "Follow thou me." He was not, probably, aware that his work here was finished, and he was not intending literally to ask his hearers to follow himself, but to follow the Master whom he served. Yet there was a wonderful aptness in those texts, and he would have been, if followed, a most excellent guide into the track of the footsteps that our Lord had left, as he understood them, and tried to walk in them. He was a man of great liberality and kindness of heart, and led, rather than drove, the people. He was a corresponding member of the New England Historical and Genealogical Society, having been elected 23 May, 1846, and was a subscriber to the Register from the commencement. A memoir of him may be found in the second volume of the Biographical Memoirs of that Society, page 312. He made a large collection of material for the genealogies of the families with which he was connected. His largest collection related to the Farnsworth's, and without his labors—the fruits of which came into the hands of Claudius B. Farnsworth of Pawtucket, R. I., soon after his death—much of this valuable information of the family would probably never have been obtained.

364. 10. Catherine Otis, b. 24 June, 1795; d. unm. She was authorized by legislative act to take the name of Catherine Jane Delap Otis Farnsworth, in 1828.

110.

Major Amos Farnsworth,[4] (Amos,[3] Benjamin,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Elizabeth Rockwood, had issue in Groton, Mass.: 5th Gen.

365* 1. Luke, b. 16 Sept. 1785; m. 16 April, 1814, Sarah Hartwell of Lyndon, Vt., daughter of Oliver and Hannah (Kelley) Hartwell, b. 6 Jan. 1795, in Dummerstown, Vt.; she d. 17 May, 1841; he m. (2) 25 Nov. 1841, Mrs. Hannah Field; she d. 28 July, 1867, aged 57; he d. 17 May, 1876. He was a farmer at Groton and died there.

366* 2. Amos, b. 30 Aug. 1788; m. 21 March, 1823, wid. Mary (Bourne) Webber of Boston, wid. of the late Capt. Seth Webber. She d. 28 Oct. 1827. Amos d. 13 July, 1861. (? 31 July, 1861).

He commenced the study of medicine with Dr. Thomas of Tyngsborough, Mass., and continued and completed his studies with Dr. John C. Warren of Boston. He was appointed a Surgeon's mate by the President, in the army engaged in the war with England, 14 April, 1812. He left South Boston in that capacity with the Fourth Regiment of Infantry, 15 June, 1812, for Burlington, Vt., his regiment having been assigned to the defence of that frontier. He wrote his "Thesis," which was upon the subject of pneumonia, in camp, by the light of the pine knots; he submitted it to the university examiner, and was graduated in the Harvard Medical School in 1813. He resigned his commission and commenced the practice of medicine at Boston, 1 May, 1814, and was elected a Fellow of the Massachusetts Medical Society, 2 Oct. 1816. He continued in practice at Boston for about twelve years. In 1832 he removed to Groton, and lived for several years near the old homestead of his ancestor, Jonas Prescott. He was an ardent supporter of the anti-slavery cause in the days when it was most unpopular, and his hospitable home at Groton was the resort of the leaders of that cause. There, came George Thompson, Wendell Phillips, Samuel J. May, and William Lloyd Garrison, with many of the lesser lights of that movement, that, in about twenty years after Garrison had sounded his trumpet-blast in his paper in Baltimore, swept away the whole fabric of Negro slavery in the United States. Dr. S. A. Green, in his "Groton Historical Series," vol. 1, No. 11, page 20, says of him:

"He was a man of marked ability, and Mr. Hawley's appreciation of his character is eminently just. At an early period he espoused the cause of the slave, when it cost a man his social position and popularity to take the side of that unfortunate class. He was with Garrison at the time of the "Garrison Mob" in Boston, 21 Oct. 1835, and he also helped largely to furnish the means for starting the 'National Anti-Slavery Standard,' at New York."

367. 3. ELIZABETH, b. 19 Oct. 1792; never married. She was a woman of great intellectual capacity and force of character. The following just description of her character is from the Boston Commonwealth, of Feby. 23, 1884:

"DIED:—In Groton, 2d inst., (2 Feby. 1884) Miss Elizabeth Farnsworth, aged 91 years, 3 months, daughter of Major Amos Farnsworth, who fought at Bunker Hill.

"This lady was a rare specimen of a genuine New England woman.—strong in intellect, decided and independent in character, of great energy, and firm in her religious faith, and a constant reader of the best books, having a tenacious memory and keeping herself well informed of things occurring all over the world, in which she retained the vivid interest of a young person. An early Garrison abolitionist, (as were her whole family), she was in sympathy with all reformatory efforts, including those to secure larger rights to women, and herself voted at the town election for school committee when 86. She excelled as a most ready letter-writer, and wrote a long letter the very morning of her death, which occurred suddenly, while her mind was as bright as ever."

She was the cousin and schoolmate of Rev. James Delap Farnsworth, and his early efforts at collecting the family history were greatly aided by her, whose memory was remarkably tenacious, and who had a kind of intuitive skill in sorting out from the current traditions the true from the false.

368* 4. RALPH, b. 20 Sept. 1795; m. 25 Nov. 1828, Eunice Williams Billings, daut. of Coddington and Emma (Williams) Billings of New London, Ct.; she d. 30 Nov. 1878; he d. 16 July, 1875.

He grad. Harv. 1821. A. M., Dart. 1825, and M. D. 1826. He lived at Norwich, Ct., and was a man of more than ordinary abilities. Like his brother and sister, he took a strong interest in all public movements, and equally with them was a man of very positive opinions. He was among the first to take the position that slavery was a great wrong, and was to be attacked wherever it could be reached. He did not, however, favor the formation of a third political party to secure the desired end, but thought slavery could be best opposed in the old Whig party, until the formation by a sort of natural selection of the Republican party, with which he united; and his strong convictions made him an ardent supporter of it. Such a constitution, with such convictions, usually arouse opposition; they did so in his case. Weaker and less positive minds do not see things with the distinctness with which they appear to the stronger man. But he usually expressed his opinions with such clearness that they could be understood by all, and they were acceded to, because his logic was invincible. And yet, he was a man of the kindest heart and tenderest sympathies. No man was ever looked to by people of all grades and associations in times of real trouble with more confidence, that he would both understand and appreciate their condition, than Dr. Ralph Farnsworth.

Abel Farnsworth,[5] (Ezra, Jr.,[4] Ezra,[3] Benjamin,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Polly Goodell, had issue in Groton, Mass.: 6th Gen.

983* 1. George, b. 23 Sept. 1810; m. 2 Oct. 1842, Jane Baxwell West of Westfield, N. Y.; she d. 22 June, 1871; m. (2) 5 May, 1873, Mrs. Freelove (Carey) Thurston of Worcester, Mass. He d. 8 July, 1885.

984* 2. Ezra, b. 5 Jan. 1813; m. 1 Oct. 1840, Sarah Melville Parker, daut. of Isaac Parker, senior partner of Parker, Wilder & Co., of Boston. She d. 28 June, 1863; he m. (2) 30 March, 1864, Mrs. Mary K. Taylor of Groton; he d. 4 July, 1890.

His education was obtained in the common schools, and in the Groton Academy. His commercial education began in a clerkship in a store in Groton, which he entered when fifteen years old, and in which he remained two years. He then obtained employment with the firm of Gordon & Stoddard, a dry goods importing house in Boston. He served that house so faithfully that in 1835, at the age of twenty-two, he was sent by it to Europe as purchasing agent, and remained there two years in that capacity. After his return home he remained with Messrs. Gordon & Stoddard about two years longer, after which he entered a co-partnership, under the name of Farnsworth & Shaw, dealing in dry goods, which continued until 1850. He then entered the commission house of Parker, Wilder & Co. In that house he was for many years the senior partner, until advancing years made it expedient to resign the position to younger men. Ezra Farnsworth was connected with the Boston Board of Trade from its organization in 1854; in 1873 he was elected its Vice-President; he was chosen a member of the City Government of Boston in 1856, and the same year became a director of the Boston National Bank. But it was in his religious life that he was best known to the community; for in his business career his personality was largely merged in the business organization of which he was so efficient a member, but in which his name did not appear. In 1828, at the age of fifteen years, he made a public profession of religion by uniting with the Congregational church in his native town. On his removal to Boston, he connected himself with the Bowdoin Street church, then under the pastoral care of the Rev. Lyman Beecher, D. D.; and he remained a member of that church until the year 1835, when he united with others in the organization of a new church, which for some time occupied the Odeon, under the pastoral care of Rev. William M. Rogers. That church removed its place of worship in 1841, to Winter Street, and was known as the Central church, in which he was chosen Deacon, and he served in that capacity for a considerable time. In 1853 he changed his church relations to Park Street church, of which he was soon chosen a Deacon, and he served in that capacity until his death. In all his long career after his removal to Boston, he was identified with the Sunday school interest, and he was connected with Sunday schools, either as a teacher or superintendent, until his death. For many years he was associated with the Board of City Missions, and from 1848 to 1850, served as its president. In 1868 he was chosen a member of the Prudential Committee of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. In 1865 he was appointed by Governor Andrew a trustee of the Massachusetts General Hospital, which office he held until 1872. He was also a supporter of various institutions of learning, to which he was a liberal contributor, and of which he was also a benefactor in various trusteeships, to which he gave freely of his time and the benefit of his sound judgment.

Luke Farnsworth,[5] (Major Amos,[4] Amos,[3] Benjamin,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his first wife, Sarah Hartwell, had issue: 6th Gen.

1053* 1. Claudius Buchanan, b. 8 Jan. 1815, in Stanstead, Province of Quebec, Canada; m. 27 Feby. 1851, Marianna McIntire of Pawtucket, R. I., daut. of Joseph and Ann (Mayberry) McIntire.

He fitted for College at the Groton Academy, and graduated at Harvard College, A. B., in 1841. He entered the law school of that university, where he remained a while; and he continued and finished his studies with Timothy G. Coffin, Esq., of New Bedford, Mass., and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar at Taunton in March, 1844. He commenced the practice of law directly after at Pawtucket, then under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, but which was, in 1862, made a part of the State of Rhode Island. In 1859 he was made treasurer of the Dunnell Manufacturing Company, then carrying on the business of calico printing at Pawtucket. He held that office until 1881, when he resigned, and resumed the practice of law. He still has a law office on Main Street, with his son, Claude Joseph, associated with him, under the firm name of Farnsworth & Farnsworth, having an extensive practice. He has been much engaged in the genealogical research of the family, and in 1891 published the "Monograph" of Matthias Farnsworth and his descendants in America, a most valuable little book, being the key almost to the Compiler of this Memorial. Being prostrated by la grippe he was unable to further continue the work, but his deeds will shine on history's page for all time to come, and the descendants of Matthias Farnsworth certainly owe him a debt of gratitude for the great and good work performed in gathering the records of many families, and in his desire to preserve from oblivion the early facts connected with this family in America. His present residence is Pawtucket, R. I.

At the Centennial Celebration of Bethel, Me., Aug. 26th, 1874, George B. Farnsworth composed the following poem for the occasion, which was sung by the audience, led by the Norway band, to the tune of "Old Hundred:"

CENTENNIAL HYMN.

As—when to Jacob it was given
To see, 'mid Eastern deserts lone,
A ladder reaching up to Heaven
Along whose steps the angels shone,—

He knew the Lord was surely there;
And what had seem'd but wilderness
Now God's own dwelling did appear,
And "Bethel" thence he named the place.

So, when our fathers, eastward led,
Chanced to this lovely vale to roam,
Seeing its emerald floor outspread
And spanned by yonder crystal dome,

Into whose depths the mountains soared
Like heavenly ladders, angel-trod,
They said, "Here surely dwells the Lord!"
And named their home the "House of God."

And here, from youth to age, they strove
Their goodly heritage to keep
For freedom, knowledge, virtue, love.—
Now in the dust, all silent sleep!

May we, their children, e'er defend
The heritage they loved so well;
This heir-loom from the past descend
To children's children, nobler still,

A place for homliest labors, meet,
Ever of manly worth th' abode;
And aye, a place of worship sweet—
A Temple high—a House of God!

Dwell with us, Thou! And when the stone
Shall be, at eve, our resting place,
Heaven's ladder be to us let down,
And may we see Thee, face to face.

Dr. Ralph Farnsworth,[5] (Major Amos,[4] Amos,[3] Benjamin,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Eunice W. Billings, had issue in Norwich, Ct.: 6th Gen.

1072. 1. Coddington Billings, b. 9 Sept. 1829; m. 1878, Caroline George; she died. He grad., studied medicine and succeeded to his father's extensive practice in Norwich, where he resides.

1073. 2. Walter Warren, b. 10 Oct. 1830, d. 24 April, 1836.

1074. 3. Isabella Stewart, b. 11 Dec. 1832, d. 6 Jan. 1837.

1075. 4. William Williams, b. 4 Nov. 1834, d. 18 March, 1835.

1076. 5. Charles, b. 30 Jan. 1836; m. 1 Nov. 1865, Harriet Peck Lester of Norwich, Ct. About that time he engaged in rice planting in Georgia, and procured a rice plantation. In going in a boat from his house to the plantation, his boat was upset and he was drowned 17 April, 1867.

During the War of the Rebellion he did good service to his country. He entered the First Regiment of Connecticut Cavalry, and was commissioned as Captain. In April, 1862, while scouting with twelve men, he was attacked by a strong force of rebels and was severely wounded. He halted his men and formed them in line of battle, but fainting from loss of blood he was brought into camp. Recovering from his injuries, he rejoined his command. He was appointed Major as a recognition of his valiant services. Afterwards, in July, 1863, he was ordered with fifty men to reconnoitre the enemy's position. He did so, and charged upon a cavalry picket of two hundred men and drove them within their lines, capturing some prisoners. The rebels, finding that his force was small, rallied, and a hand-to-hand fight ensued. His horse was shot, and he, with twenty-six of his men, were taken prisoners and put in the Libby prison at Richmond, where he remained for eight months. He was afterwards appionted Lieutenant-Colonel, but his health was so broken by his wounds and imprisonment that he resigned, and was honorably discharged, 17 May, 1864, with the rank of Colonel, and with the record of a brave and spirited officer, well adapted to his arm of the service. The report on rebel prisons says:

"Among those who contributed testimony based on personal knowledge, was Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Farnsworth. His letters were of great interest; his evidence on points of fact, emphatic; exposing clearly the sufferings and horrors incident to life in Libby prison and at Belle Isle."

In another place the report says:

"Lieutenant-Colonel Farnsworth, of the First Connecticut Cavalry, was also an inmate of the Libby prison, and while there did what he could to see that those of his own command captured with him, as well as others whom he knew, shared with him the good things sent to him from his own home. His thoughtfulness and zeal in this particular were remembered with devout gratitude by some who returned to speak of it, and who felt their own preservation from death by starving was due to him. When he was exchanged and returned home, he not only had words of testimony concerning the inhuman treatment which prevailed at Richmond, but he forwarded as early as possible, to those he left behind him in confinement, a box containing such things as he knew from experience would comfort and cheer them."

He had one child born in Savannah, Ga., viz:

John Farnsworth,[6] (John,[5] Dea. Isaac,[4] Isaac,[3] Benjamin,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Rebecca Wright, had issue in Boston, Mass.: 7th Gen.

1372. 1. John Augustus, b. 26 Feby. 1815; m. 14 April, 1839, Mary Jane Osgood of Newfane, Vt.

He has for forty years been one of the most prominent citizens of Southern Vermont. In early life he removed to Saxtons River to work on a small woolen mill at that point. Sometime in the '40's this mill was burned. With two or three others, Mr. Farnsworth, who had by rigid economy saved a small sum of money, rebuilt the mill, which eventually, under the name of Farnsworth & Co., became one of the most prosperous establishments of its size and capacity in the State. It acquired a wide reputation for the quality of its goods, while the firm's name was known far and near for integrity and honorable dealing. In the community in which he lives his position has long been one of commanding influence. Public office he never sought, though almost continuously forced upon him, and he has filled many positions of trust. He has also represented his town in the State House and Senate. His wealth has been freely dispensed for the benefit of the church, the community and education. Farnsworth Hall, the central building of the group comprising Vermont Academy at Saxtons River, of which he is a trustee and treasurer, is an eloquent witness of his generosity to this institution. He had only, so far as I can learn, 1 ch. viz:

Sarah R., b. 4 May, 1842, d. 10 Aug. 1848.

He was an old Boston printer, but for twelve years was engaged in mercantile pursuits at Bath, Me. Shortly after the outbreak of the Rebellion he, under commission from Gov. John A. Andrew, was engaged in recruiting a company of soldiers in Boston. At that time, July, 1861, patriotism was the sole inducement for enlistment, and the first rush of recruits to the front were few, for the general impression then was that the war would soon be over; and Mr. Farnsworth, fearing his company would not be filled in time to participate in the struggle, turned over his recruits to whoever would take them, and enlisted as a private in Co. K, 12th Mass. Vols., known as the "Webster Regiment," commanded by Fletcher, the son of Daniel Webster. With this regiment he participated in the serious engagements of the Peninsula campaign, including and following the second Bull Run. At Antietam he was wounded by a ball passing through the leg, and two days after rejoining the regiment at Fredericksburg, he was shot through the shoulder, which wound left him crippled for life; he res. Grafton, Vt.

1395. 1. Samuel Parker, b. 14 Nov. 1872.

1396. 2. John Lewis, b. 3 Nov. 1874.

1397. 3. Sarah, b. 26 Feby. 1877.

1398* 2. Ezra, b. 3 Jan. 1843; m. 6 Oct. 1869, Leila Frances Newcomb, daut of John Jay and Mary (Marshall) Newcomb.

He enlisted 16 Oct. 1861, as a private in the 26th Regt. of Mass. Vols., Col. E. F. Jones, commanding, to serve for three years in the war of the Rebellion; was promoted to Corporal of Co. B, in Dec. following; was Sergeant of the regiment in Feby. 1862; was commissioned Second Lieut. of Co. D, 11 Feby. 1863; First Lieut. of Co. C, 19 May, 1863, and Captain of the same company, 18 Oct. 1864. While serving as Sergeant-Major he was for some time Acting Adjt. of the Regt. While he was First Lieut., he was for a time Quartermaster of the Regt. at New Orleans, and vicinity. In the summer of 1863 he was sent north to Boston Harbor for recruits from the draft, and was on detached service until Feby. 1864, when at his urgent request he was ordered to join his regiment on Bayou Teche, in Louisiana. He was on Gen. Benj. F. Butler's flagship with the army, when Admiral Farragut ran by Forts Jackson and St. Phillip and captured New Orleans, and he also participated in the skirmishes in the department of the Gulf. In May, 1864, his regiment moved north and reported to Gen. Grant at Bermuda Hundred on James River. In Aug. 1864, the regiment was sent to Washington, D. C., and from thence marched through Sinclairs Gap to the Shenandoah Valley under Gen. Phil. Sheridan. While the regiment was under Sheridan, it was in several severe engagements and suffered severely. At the battle of Winchester, Va., 19 Sept. 1864, the regiment bore a prominent part and lost heavily; also in the battles of Cedar Creek and Middletown, 19 Oct. 1864. In the latter battle he lost his left leg below the knee, in consequence of which he was discharged from service, 11 Feby. 1865. The important duties entrusted to him in the service while he was a young man, shows the estimation in which his bravery and discretion were held by his superior officers. After his retirement from the army he engaged in farming in the Northwest for a time, but soon engaged in banking, and was, 1891, president and treasurer of the Farnsworth Loan and Realty Company, at Minneapolis, Minn., where he now resides.

1492. 2. JOHN ARTHUR, b. 12 Dec. 1852; m. 2 Dec. 1892, Mrs. Fannie McKesson, at Cheyenne Wells, Colo. Accidentally killed 29 March, 1894.

Death of John A. Farnsworth.

"CREEDE, COLO., March 29, 1894.—John Farnsworth was instantly killed on Bachelor Hill this afternoon by a tree he had cut down falling upon him. He was getting out timbers for the Happy Thought of the United Mines Company. He leaves a wife.—Special to the Denver Republican.

"The above paragraph will be read with deep sorrow by a large number of Cheyenne Wells people. John A. Farnsworth was a resident of Cheyenne Wells for a number of years and was respected by all who knew him as an honest and industrious man, a true friend and a good citizen. He was married in Cheyenne Wells to Mrs. Fannie McKesson of this city, and shortly afterward moved to Creede, where he has since been engaged in mining. His father and mother and two brothers, who are at present living at Cheyenne Wells, as well as the sorrowing wife, have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community. The remains will be brought to Cheyenne Wells for interrment."

By 2d wife, Martha Lawrence, he had:

44.

Hon. Ebenezer Thatcher,[5] and his wife Lucy F. Knox, had issue in Thomaston, Maine: 6th Gen.

45. 1. Julia Knox, b. 1805; m. Rev. Oren Sykes; they res. Bedford, Mass.; she d. 30 Aug. 1853.

46. 2. Commodore Henry Knox, b. 26 May, 1806; admitted a Cadet at West Point, 1 July, 1822. His health failing, he was allowed to exchange his cadetship for a midshipman's appointment in the United States Navy. The appointment bore date 4 March, 1823; he served for some time under Com. David Porter, afterwards under Com. Isaac Hull, and in 1829 was promoted to be a passed midshipman. His natural abilities showed themselves in service and he received deserved promotion. Soon after the opening of the war of the Rebellion he was promoted Commodore on the active list and placed in command of the Screw Corvette "Colorado," and in that ship commanded the first division of Porter's fleet in December, 1864, and January, 1865, during the attacks upon, and final capture of Fort Fisher and its dependencies. Rear Admiral Porter, in his report of this action to the Secretary of the Navy, said of him:

"First and foremost in the list of Commodores is Com. H. K. Thatcher. . . . . I believe Commodore Thatcher would have fought his ship until she went to the bottom, and went into the fight with a full determination to conquer or die. There is no reward too great for this gallant officer; he has shown the kind of ability naval leaders should possess, a love of fighting and an invincible courage."

He was then appointed Rear Admiral, and assumed command of the West Gulf Squadron, as successor of Vice-Admiral Farragut, who, after the battle of Mobile Harbor, had gone north on account of ill health. Com. Thatcher was in command of the fleet at the final taking of Mobile, 15 April, 1865, and then he closed his brilliant war record by taking possession of the Forts at Galveston. After the close of the war he was in command of the squadron in the Pacific Ocean. On the 26th of May, 1868, having been 45 years in the Naval service of the United States, he was placed on the retired list. He died 5 April, 1880.

Ebenezer's other children were:

47. 3. CHARLES, b. Feby. 1809, d. 8 Oct. 1810.
48. 4. LUCY ANNA, b. Aug. 1810. Took the name of Leeson, by legislative act.
49. 5. HENRIETTA, b. 1811; m. Rev. George C. Hyde of Syracuse, N. Y. She d. 30 Aug. 1853; had two daughters.
50. 6. CAROLINE F., m. —— Smith.
51. 7. JAMES SWAN, b. Aug. 1815. Lawyer, 1840; entered U. S. Navy, was purser of and perished in the "Grampus," 18 March, 1843.
52. 8. HARRIET ELIZABETH, m. George B. Page of Belgrade, Me. She d. 18 Feby. 1847.

[Perhaps some one will prepare the Thatcher genealogy at no distant day.]

SARAH FARNSWORTH.

Sarah Farnsworth,[2] (Matthias,[1]) the seventh child of Matthias, was born 1664, in Groton, Mass., and married, about 1684–5, Simon Stone, Jr., of Watertown, Mass.; he was born 8 Sept. 1656, and died 20 Dec. 1741, aged 85 yrs. 3 mos. and 11 days. Her gravestone says she died 16 Sept. 1731, "in the 68th year of her age." Simon Stone, Jr., was the oldest son and first-born of Simon and Mary (Whipple) Stone, and was probably born in Watertown. In the New Eng. Gen. and Hist. Register, vol. 10, page 229, is the following:

Almanac Memoranda of the Stone Family of Watertown.

"An old almanac of Rev. Nathan Stone, in which he kept a family register, running back his ancestral line on both sides,—the paternal to Simon Stone, who came from London, April, 1635,—lineage traced on the outside blank leaves of the almanac, the rest scattered through it according to dates. He says: "My grandfather Stone was Simon Stone of Watertown, who came out of England when four years old with my great-grandfather Simon Stone." * * * "My grandmother Stone was Mary Whipple." Under the headings, Uncles and Aunts, he says: "My uncle Simon Stone died Dec. 20, 1741."

He settled in Groton as early as 1694; he was a Deacon in the church, and held several town offices. He had at least three children born before he went to Groton. The exact number of his children cannot be ascertained, but the following are undoubtedly his: 3rd Gen.

1. 1. Sarah, b. about 1686; m. 28 Sept. 1708, Stephen Farr of Stow.
2* 2. Simon, b. about 1688; m. 1713, Sarah ———.
3* 3. Abigail, b. about 1691; m. 11 Dec. 1718, Nathaniel Holden; she d. 29 Sept. 1757, "in the 66th year of her age."
4. 4. Susanna, b. 23 Oct. 1694.
5. 5. Isaac, b. 4 May, 1697, d. 30 Sept. 1723.
6. 6. Hannah, b. 1699, d. 27 Sept. 1723.
7* 7. Joseph, b. 1702; m. 9 May, 1728, Mary Prescott, b. 29 April, 1711; she d. 5 April, 1793; he d. 10 Sept. 1777, aged 75.
8* 8. Benjamin, b. 12 Aug. 1706; m. 13 May, 1736, Emma Parker, b. 13 Sept. 1713, daut. of James and Abigail (Prescott) Parker; he d. 23 Sept. 1758.
9. Lydia, b. about 1707, d. 30 Sept. 1723.

Simon Stone was in the garrison at Exeter, N. H., in the Indian war, 4 July, 1690, and was badly wounded in an attack that day, but fully recovered. (See Green's Indian Wars, p. 56). He was said to have been born with two thumbs on each hand, and his neighbors said "he had as many hearts."

John Stone, the brother of Simon, who married the wid. of Matthias Farnsworth, Jr., and Simon, both lived in the immediate neighborhood of Matthias, Sen., and after his death, in view of the danger of Indians, when garrisons were formed in the town for common defense, March 17, 1692, one of these garrisons consisted of the following persons—really one family; they were, as entered in the records: (See New Eng. Hist. and Gen. Register, vol. 43, p. 374). "John Farnsworth, Matthias Farnsworth, [Jr.], Benjamin Farnsworth, Samuel Farnsworth, Widow Farnsworth, Simon Stone, John Stone, Nicholas Hutchins and their families: 10 men." John Farnsworth, who was an ensign in the militia, was probably in command, and "Widow Farnsworth," [of Matthias, Sen.], is named as a householder, and probably had with her, her son Jonathan; and Nicholas Hutchins, her brother-in-law, also had his son John with him.

Simon Stone, Jr.,[4] and his wife Sarah ———, had issue in Groton, Mass.: 5th Gen.

9. 1. Simon, b. 10 Sept. 1714.
10. 2. Ephraim, b. 2 Jan. 1716.
11. 3. Oliver, b. 20 Jan. 1720.
12. 4. Sarah, b. 27 Jan. 1722.
13. 5. Isaac, b. 17 Feby. 1724; m. 3 May, 1765, Rachel Fiske of Boylston. Moved to Lancaster, Mass.; he d. 1816, aged 93–4.
14. 6. Hannah, b. 18 April, 1726.
15. 7. Elias, b. 2 April, 1728.
16. 8. Amos, b. 9 Sept. 1729.

This family probably left Groton early.

7.

Joseph Stone,[3] and Mary Prescott, his wife, had issue: See Watertown, Mass., records. 4th Gen.

17. 1. Joseph, b. 20 Dec. 1729.

36. 9. Simon, b. 1 Nov. 1746.
37. 10. Amos, b. 24 July, 1749; m. 1775, Molly Moore; she d. 13 May, 1847, aged 94; 10 ch.
48. 11. Samuel, b. 7 Nov. 1751.
49. 12. Thankful, b. 10 Oct. 1754; m. 21 Oct. 1773, Joseph Harwood, Jr., of Littleton, Mass.

8.

Benjamin Stone,[3] and his wife Emma Parker, had issue in Groton, Mass.: 4th Gen.

50. 1. Abel, b. 1737, d. young.
51. 2. Benjamin, b. 1738; m. 12 Oct. 1762, Prudence Farnsworth, daut. of Ezra. See Benjamin Farnsworth, No. 65.
52. 3. Lucy, b. 1739, d. young.
53. 4. Peter, b. 1741; m. 14 Sept. 1793, Abigail Tapott of Westford.
54. 5. Edmund, b. 1743; m. Susanna Whitney; lived in Templeton.
55. 6. Leonard, b. 1746; m. wid. Catherine Kendall; lived in Templeton; he d. 1818.
56. 7. Philip, b. 1747; lived in Chesterfield, N. H.
57. 8. Abigail, b. 1749; m. 4 June, 1771, Elisha Rockwood, his 2d. wife; lived in Chesterfield, N. H.
58. 9. Susanna, b. 1752.
59. 10. Emma, b. 1753, d. 10 Aug. 1775.

There is much published of the Stone family, and perhaps some one will compile the full record of this very numerous branch.

3.

NATHANIEL HOLDEN, and his wife Abigail Stone,[3] had issue in Groton, Mass.: 4th Gen.

60* 1. ABIGAIL, b. 15 Sept. 1719; m. 14 Jan. 1742, Seth Walker, Jr., b. 16 April, 1717; he d. 4 Jan. 1794; she d. 31 Jan. 1762; he m. (2) Jemima Farnsworth, daut of Josiah; she b. 29 Aug. 1729. See Matthias Farnsworth, Jr., No. 62.

SAMUEL FARNSWORTH.

Samuel Farnsworth,[2] (Matthias,[1]) the eighth child, was born 8 Oct. 1669, in Groton, Mass. He m. 12 Dec. 1706, Mary Whitcomb, daughter of Josiah of Lancaster, and widow of Simon Willard, who died in 1706.

He lived in Groton early in life, and his mother lived with him after his father's death; and she left him by her will her "Great Bible." He appears to have been the mainstay and reliance of his mother during the twenty-eight years that she lived after the death of her husband.

Samuel became an early settler of "Turkey Hills," now called Lunenburg. The date of his death is unknown, but as his will is dated 9 June, 1727, and was proved 1 Aug. 1730, and Josiah Willard was appointed guardian for his son Stephen, then in his fifteenth year, 17 Feby. 1730, so that probably he was then recently dead. He was admitted to the church in Groton, 27 July, 1718. He had the following children: 3rd Gen.

1* 1. Mary Crew, b. 13 Sept. 1707, at Kingston; m. 8 Nov. 1727, Jonathan Page, Jr., of Lunenburg; he b. 5 June, 1710; he d. 30 Aug. 1751; she d. 22 May, 1770. He was one of the proprietors of Charlestown, N. H.

2. 2. Samuel, b. 29 June, 1709, at Groton, Mass. He never married.

In 1740 he, with his younger brothers, David and Stephen, and his half brother, Moses Willard, with others, mostly from Groton and its vicinity, having had a grant of land at the place since called Charlestown, in New Hampshire, organized a settlement there. The place was considered by the Massachusetts Bay Colony to be within its jurisdiction, and it was granted to them as one of a series, this being called "No. 4," which singular name has adhered to it ever since, although the place was soon legally named Charlestown. Many people still speak of it as "Charlestown No. 4." The first actual settlement of the place, it is said, was made by these three brothers in 1740; their associates, however, following in a short time. Soon after moving there, the dividing line between the Massachusetts and New Hampshire Colonies was somewhat unsatisfactorily determined as it exists at the present day, and by this settlement of boundaries Charlestown came within the jurisdiction of the New Hampshire Colony. This transfer caused the original grantees much trouble, for the New Hampshire Colony, under the lead of Gov. Benning Wentworth, refused to recognize the validity of the Massachusetts grants. But after considerable delay and long negotiation the matter was compromised by the issuance of a new grant, partially satisfying the claims of the original grantees. Samuel Farnsworth was the leader of the party. He was a man of energy, force, judgment and probity. One of the earliest things necessary to do was to build a fort, and the collection and expenditure of the means for this purpose was entrusted to him, and he became treasurer of the organization. In an attack made by the Indians upon the settlement, 2 May, 1746, he was accidentally shot and killed. He was of the party—about twenty in number—who were attracted by curiosity to see the spot where Seth Putnam had been killed on the 19th of April, previous, the savages having laid for them in ambush.

Ensign Obadiah Sartwell [Sawtell] was taken prisoner, and Samuel Farnsworth, Elijah Allen, Peter Perin, Aaron Lyon and Joseph Massey were killed. Farnsworth was not killed by the Indians, but his death was an accident, and occurred in the following manner: The savages, as soon as they had fired on the company that had been attracted to the spot where Putnam was killed, endeavored to cut off their retreat to the fort. One of them had overtaken Farnsworth and was making an effort to take him prisoner, but was valiantly resisted. Their contest was observed by a soldier, who, thinking that he would put an end to it, fired for the purpose of killing the Indian; but unfortunately, either through a false aim or some sudden motion of the parties just at the time, Farnsworth came in line of the ball and was killed. The circumstance was greatly regretted, though no blame was cast on the soldier, whose motive was appreciated notwithstanding the sad consequences of his act. (See Saunderson's Charlestown, N. H.). His brother David administered his estate, 3 Nov. 1748. From the occurrence of his name upon important committees, it is evident he had the confidence of those early settlers.

3* 3. David, b. 4 Aug. 1711, in Groton, Mass.; m. 15 Aug. 1735, Hannah Hastings of Lunenburg, she b. 24 Jan. 1716–17, in Watertown, Mass.

He was one of the original settlers of No. 4, and shared with them in the hazards of the Indian raids that were incidental to all the settlements on the frontier, and appears to have been a man of more than ordinary intelligence. If important business was to be transacted he was usually appointed one of the committee to attend to it. He was thus, with his brother Samuel, on the committee to contract with some suitable person for building and keeping in repair a corn-mill and a sawmill. On committees for the survey of lots, and determining lines for laying out and building roads, and whatever was required for promoting the interest or bettering the condition of the township. From 1750 to 1760, he was the principal and nearly the only surveyor of the place.

On the 20th of April, 1757, David Farnsworth and four others were taken prisoners by a party of about seventy French and Indians, and carried to Canada.

The following letter from Josiah Foster of Winchester, N. H., who was taken prisoner on the 7th of June, 1756, will be interesting:

MONTREAL, May 16th, 1757.

SIR: * * * The 5th of this present month, the Mohawks brought in prisoners from No. 4, Mr. David Farnsworth, Sampson Colefax, Deacon Adams, Asa Spafford and George Robbins, which gave us the sorrowful news of the death of your father Willard, who was killed by the Indians last summer a little way from the fort. Your brother Moses was stabbed in the thigh with a spear; this is all the mischief that has been done, except the Indians burnt the Mills. Mr. Labaree has made his escape from Montreal and has gone for the English fort. I should be glad to write you a fuller account of things, but it is very difficult to write. I should be glad if you would write to me and let me know how you are.

So I remain your friend,

JOSIAH FOSTER.

*Lieutenant James Johnson.

David succeeded in making his escape, and after seventeen days' terrible experience in the wilderness, almost without food, he found his friends; and not long after his return from captivity he moved his family to Hollis, N. H., where he was living at the time of the Revolution. And still later in life moved into the northern part of Vermont,† under safer auspices.

---

* James Johnson married Susanna, daughter of Lt. Moses Willard.

†See Hist. Charlestown, N. H., p. 336.

4. 4. Abigail, b. 1713; m. —— Thompson. See will of her brother Joshua.

5* 5. Stephen, b. 1715; m. 22 Dec. 1741, Eunice Hastings, sister of his brother David's wife; she b. 3 Sept. 1722; he d. 6 Sept. 1771; she d. 9 June, 1811. He probably lived for a while, after marriage, in Lunenburg, as his wife belonged there, and he joined the church there. But he went to Charlestown, N. H., and was an original settler.

He, with the other settlers, was a member of Captain Stevens' company for the defence of No. 4, formed June 21st, 1750; see Muster Roll. The Roll is said to be imperfect, but it is headed:

Captain Phineas Stevens,
Samuel Farnsworth,
David Farnsworth,
Stephen Farnsworth,
And others.

Stephen Farnsworth proved himself to be a person who could be relied upon in all the difficult circumstances through which No. 4 had to pass. In 1746, a short time before his brother Samuel's death, Stephen was engaged with a scouting party in locating the enemy, and appears to have fallen into their hands at Northfield, Vt.* But he seems to have escaped, or been discharged some way, as he appears at home soon afterwards.

He was again captured by the Indians and French on the 19th of April, 1746. Capt. John Spafford, the miller, and Lieut. Isaac Parker were also taken at the same time. After seventeen months confinement he was exchanged and returned home in broken health, which he never afterwards fully recovered. His wife, with her children, removed to Lunenburg, Mass., during her husband's continued captivity, and was very reluctant, after his return, to take up her abode again at No. 4. But she at length yielded to his importunity, and Charlestown became her home till after his death, when she removed to South Woodstock, Vt., to make her home with her children. Stephen Farnsworth left behind him the example of a brave and good man, and of a useful citizen. See Hist. Charlestown, N. H.

*See Hist. Gen. Reg. vol 9, p. 163-4.

6. 6. Joshua, b. 1721. He was a soldier of the Louisburg* expedition of 1745, and probably died while on that expedition. His will is dated 10 March, 1746, (see Worcester County Records), which made his brother David sole executor, and left legacies to "sister Mary Page, sister Abigail Thompson, and to his brothers Samuel, David and Stephen." He never married.

1.

Jonathan Page, Jr., and his wife Mary Crew Farnsworth,[8] lived in Lunenburg, Mass., before he moved to Charlestown, N. H. It has been difficult to learn much of his family, but the following are supposed to be his children, born in Lunenburg, order of birth uncertain: 4th Gen.

7* 1. Peter, b. 1745; m. 15 Oct. 1765, Sarah Farnsworth, No. 31, she b. 30 June, 1748, in Charlestown, N. H. He prob. had a 2d wife, Mary. He was one of the selectmen of Charlestown, 1778–9, and '84, and was frequently employed in other business of the town; he was chosen grand juror to serve 84* 4. Oliver, b. 10 Dec. 1775; m. Nancy Mumford; he d. 23 Sept. 1859, at Newport, R. I., aged 83 years, 9 mos. 13 days.

Oliver Farnsworth, Jr., and his brother Havilah, both learned their father's trade, and June 14, 1797, they commenced the publication of a newspaper at Suffield, Ct., called The Impartial Herald. They continued it for one year, when they sold out to other parties, and removed to Newport, R. I., where they opened a printing office, and the Schedules of the General Assembly of that State for the year 1798, bear the imprint of "H. & O. Farnsworth." In the year 1799, Oliver Farnsworth, Jr., commenced the publication of the Rhode Island Republican, and continued it for about two years in the interest of the Jeffersonian party.

Oliver also published a life of Washington, under the following title: "A Memory of Washington; Comprising a Sketch of His Life and Character and the National Testimonials of Respect. Also a Collection of Eulogies and Orations, with a Copious Appendix. Newport, R. I.: Printed by Oliver Farnsworth, 1800." It was the first attempt at a collection of the most important of Washington's papers, as well as an account of his life, that was made after his death. It is a creditable work when the time is considered, and the author's facilities for procuring information. After leaving Newport he went to Cincinnati, O., then the "far west" on the verge of the wilderness. There he opened the first printing office and published the first newspaper in that region of country. In his old age he returned to Newport, R. I.

Elon Farnsworth was a farmer's boy, and passed his early years on his father's farm in Woodstock, Vt. But he early developed studious habits, and acquired a taste for books that made him devour all that fell in his way. He dipped into the classics, and with very little assistance mastered the intricacies of classic lore; the love of which, and a fondness for the great writers of old, remained with him as a solace and a comfort through all his busy life. He went to Detroit, Mich., in 1822, and began the study of law with the firm of Whitney & Sibley. Michigan was then a Territory, and Sibley was soon appointed a Judge, and Elon continued his studies with Mr. Whitney, and in due time was admitted to the bar at Detroit. His studious habits, clear head and retentive memory, commended him so strongly to his instructor that young Farnsworth was retained in the business; and as Mr. Whitney died not long after, he succeeded to the business. This he managed with such success that his fame rose rapidly. His professional opinions were sought in all directions, and at an unusually early age he was recognized as one of the leading lawyers of the Territory, and was generally conceded to stand at the head of the bar.

He was a member of the Legislative Council of the Territory of Michigan, to which he was elected in 1834. Soon after this he formed a copartnership with Daniel Goodwin, and the firm of Farnsworth & Goodwin was engaged in the most extensive law practice then known in the Northwest. On the organization of the State government in 1836, the judiciary of the State of Michigan was organized with a Chancery Court, and he was appointed the first Chancellor. In this judicial office he served with ability until he resigned on account of ill health, in 1843. His opinions are published in Harrington's Chancery Reports, and they have led in the development of the law in the State of Michigan. After his resignation as Chancellor, he was appointed Attorney-General of the State, which office he held for two years. He was, by virtue of his office as Chancellor, a Regent of the University during his entire term of service. In 1846 he became Regent by appointment until 1850, and by re-appointment until 1852, when he was chosen by popular election, and he retained the office until 1858.

In 1846, when the Michigan Central R. R. Co. was organized, he was chosen director, resident at Detroit, which office he held for about twenty years. In 1849 he was chosen president of the Detroit Savings Bank, and held that office until his death. He gave daily personal attention to its affairs, except during short periods of absence from the State, until within a few months of his death.

144. 2. Genevieve, b. 13 Sept. 1850; m. 23 Dec. 1873, George F. Wright, and is living in California.

145* 6. GEN. JOHN FRANKLIN, b. 27 March, 1820; m. 12 Oct. 1846, Mary A. Clark, daut. of John and Mary.

He early moved to Michigan and engaged with his father in surveying. He acquired an academic education, such as was accessible in that new country; studied law and was admitted to the bar in Illinois. He settled for the practice of his profession at St. Charles, in 1842, and removed from there to Chicago in 1852. He was elected to the Congress of the United States by the district in which he lived, and he was a member of the 35th, 36th, 38th, 39th, 40th, 41st, and 42d Congress. On the breaking out of the Rebellion, John Franklin Farnsworth raised the Eighth Regiment of Illinois Cavalry, and was appointed its Colonel, and took it to the Army of the Potomac in Oct. 1861. He was promoted to be Brigadier General, 29 Nov. 1862. He participated in the advance on Bull Run and the Rappahannock in March, 1862, and in the battles of the Peninsula campaign that summer. His regiment was in the advance from Williamsburg to Mechanicsville under General Stoneman, who was Chief of Cavalry for the army, and who, in making up his brigade for the advance, selected the Eighth Illinois Cavalry as one of this brigade, and placed it upon the right. In the change of base from the Chickahominy to James River, Col. Farnsworth's regiment was assigned to conduct a very large train of valuable property of the army to the "James," which was safely done by a night march, arriving near the river at Haxall's landing at about 3 o'clock, June 30, 1862, and from thence sent the train the following day to Harrison's Landing.

When the Army of the Potomac returned to Washington about the last of August, 1862, at the time of the second battle of Bull Run, and moved up into Maryland, as the Confederates were moving towards Harper's Ferry, his regiment formed part of the advance column of the army under Gen. Pleasanton. He was then put in command of a brigade, consisting of his own regiment and the Third Indiana Cavalry; and on the 7th Sept. 1862, he led the advance from Darnstown, Md., through Poolesville, where he had a skirmish with the enemy, driving them out of town and occupying it that night. The next day he pushed on to Barnesville, capturing en route 25 or 30 prisoners, and a flag of the Eighth Virginia Cavalry. At Barnesville another engagement took place, in which the enemy retreated.

On the 11th Sept. he captured Sugar Loaf Mountain, which had been used by the enemy as a signal station. From there, marching through Frederick, Md., he had several encounters between that city and South Mountain, where the enemy were in force, and the battle of Sept. 14th was fought. On the 15th, early in the morning, he was ordered to advance, which he did, going over the mountain with only eight companies of his regiment and charging impetuously a brigade of the enemy's Cavalry at the village of Boonsboro. Here, considering the numbers engaged, was one of the severest cavalry encounters of the war, embracing a succession of charges and counter-charges, and hand-to-hand fighting. The enemy was vanquished; their commander unhorsed, escaped through a cornfield; four pieces of artillery and over two hundred prisoners were taken, and many were killed and wounded, with a loss to Farnsworth's command of two prisoners, six or eight wounded and none killed.

The battle of Antietam followed and the enemy was driven across the Potomac in full retreat. Later in the fall, upon our army crossing the Potomac, the cavalry had active duty to perform, and Col. Farnsworth was engaged in many sharp encounters with the enemy, notably at Purcelville, Philamont, Upperville, Barber's Cross Roads, Chester Gap, Amesville, and Little Washington; reaching Falmouth, opposite Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 22, where that unfortunate battle was fought which closed the campaign for the year. It was at the close of this movement, Nov. 29, 1862, while still in the field, and in recognition of his services, that he was raised to the rank of Brigadier General. General Farnsworth had had no military education or experience until he raised his first regiment. But his judgment and perception of the advantages of any position in which he was placed served him remarkably well in place of military training. About the close of the campaign in 1862, he received severe injuries that disabled him from further service in the field, and in 1863 he resigned his commission and devoted himself to the service of his country in ways in which he could be more efficient. In the fall of 1862 he was again elected to Congress, taking his place there in December, 1863, serving continuously for ten years.

In the winter of 1863, he obtained orders from the War Department and raised another regiment for service in the field—the Seventeenth Illinois Cavalry—which enabled him to secure the promotion of many of the officers and men who had served under him in the Eighth Cavalry; and his old regiment eventually produced two brigadier-generals, five brigadier-generals by brevet, two colonels, and three of his officers were appointed majors of cavalry in the regular army, etc.

His labors in Congress were able, effective, and appreciated. He was a firm and forcible speaker, a ready debater, a dangerous foe to attack, and a valuable advocate and friend. After leaving Congress he returned to the practice of his profession of the law.

James Patten Farnsworth,[6] (John,[5] Samuel,[4] Lieut. David,[3] Samuel,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Achsah Hudson, had issue in Green Oak, Michigan: 7th Gen.

187. 1. Robert, died young.

188. 2. Gen. Elon John, b. 30 July, 1837.

Of his early life I learn but little. He entered the University at Ann Arbor, Mich., and while a student there in 1857, he joined the expedition then fitting out by the United States army, against the Mormons in Utah, and was assigned as foragemaster to the Quartermaster's Department. In the spring of 1859, he was one of the "detachment of the army" which was sent from Camp Floyd, Utah, to the Mountain Meadows. Whitney's History of Utah, vol. 1, page 707, speaking of the "massacre" and its endings, says:

"In the spring of 1859, a detachment of troops from Camp Floyd, sent out for the purpose, gathered up the scattered bones and buried them in one spot, erecting over them a rude cairn, against which leaned a slab bearing the inscription: "Here 120 men, women and children were massacred in cold blood, early in September, 1857." Surmounting the cairn was a cross bearing the words: "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord." Nothing remains now to mark the place of sepulchre; cairn and cross have yeilded to the action of the elements and have crumbled and disappeared."

In 1861 he returned home, and immediately joined the Eighth Illinois Cavalry, then being organized by his uncle, Col. John Franklin Farnsworth, and was appointed assistant quartermaster. He was elected Capt. of Company K, and served in the Peninsula Campaign in Virginia, and early in 1863 he was acting Lieut.-Col. and Chief Quartermaster of the Fourth Army Corps. He was under the chief command of General Pleasanton, who commended him in his reports for gallant and meritorious services. In May, 1863, he was aide on his Staff, and earned the esteem of his commander and admiration of his fellow-officers. June 29, 1863, on the eve of the battle of Gettysburg, he was commissioned Brigadier-General of Cavalry. He being on detached service at the time, the commission did not reach him, but was among Gen. Pleasanton's papers at headquarters until after the battle in which he lost his life. He was, however, immediately assigned to the command of a brigade in Kilpatrick's cavalry division, comprising the First Vermont, First West Virginia, Fifth New York and Eighteenth Pennsylvania regiments. As the battle was coming on it was impossible to procure the uniform of his rank. Gen. Pleasanton generously placed his own wardrobe at his service, and on the field of Gettysburg he wore one of Pleasanton's blue coats, decorated with a single star.

Late on the third day of the battle, July 3, 1863, after Pickett's charge had been repulsed, Farnsworth's brigade occupied a position on a wooded hill to the left of Round Top. Immediately in front were the enemy's skirmish line and the First Texas regiment, posted behind a rail fence. The First West Virginia regiment was ordered to charge the Texans, with a battalion of the First Vermont as skirmishers. It charged in gallant style only to receive a volley, the deadly fire of which caused them to recoil. The regiment rallied and charged again, and a second time it was compelled by the storm of bullets to fall back, with its ranks greatly thinned.

It was then that Kilpatrick, angered by the failure to dislodge the Texas regiment, ordered the charge that has been the subject of much discussion, and general, though not universal, condemnation. The ground was bad for cavalry movements. The objective point was the rear of Law's Confederate brigade, intrenched on the sloping sides of Round Top. The intervening ground was hilly and uneven, while stone walls, rail and worn fences of that section greatly increased the difficulties to be encountered. At various points of advantage were posted regiments of Confederate infantry and artillery. It was a charge by a shattered remnant of a brigade into the midst of a well posted army of infantry. It has been called by a Confederate witness, "a mad charge by a mad leader." Astonished at an order that seemed to have little purpose other than the slaughter of his brave soldiers, Farnsworth, who had the true soldier's regard for his men, asked Kilpatrick if he really meant if he should throw his handful of men over the broken ground before them, remarking, "These are too good men to kill." The impetuous Kilpatrick hotly retorted: "Do you refuse? If you are afraid to lead your men, I will lead them myself." Rising in his saddle, his face radiant with conscious strength and courage, and burning with indignation, Farnsworth passionately yet calmly replied: "Take that back! I ask no man to lead my men forward." There was a moment's silence, and then Kilpatrick, with a magnanimity that was manly and creditable, acknowledged his error, and the two commanders engaged in a conversation that was not heard by others.

General Farnsworth soon rode to the head of the Third Battalion, consisting of about two hundred men, the remnant of the First Vermont, and ordered the charge. With drawn sabres, they rode through the Confederate skirmish line, into the fields beyond, over the fences, and made as bold a dash for Lee's army as if they had been supported by the entire Union forces. While the First Battalion, in advance, was extricating itself from the Fourth Alabama, whose volley it received within a few paces, and which was the first intimation of the presence of the Confederates at that point, Gen. Farnsworth, with the Third Battalion, circled to the right towards the enemy's line of battle. Skirting a low hill to the rear of Law's* brigade, this few score of gallant men, led by their noble General, literally entered the "jaws of death." Charging along a stone wall between the hill and Law's brigade, they were exposed to the close enfilading fire of several Confederate regiments on the right, and of the Fourth Alabama on the left. They emerged from this only to receive the close fire of a battery, and here the remnant of this heroic band broke into three parties. General Farnsworth, still unscathed, rode some distance farther, until his horse fell under him. A trooper dismounted. Farnsworth sprang into the saddle, wheeled, and followed by a few troopers,— Confederate reports say there were not more than ten with him when he fell,— at full gallop, charged again and again. * * * * It is not strange that the Confederates looked upon him as the mad leader of madmen.

Incredible as it seems, Gen. Farnsworth, with Capt. Cushman and about ten of the Vermont troopers, on the return charge, penetrated in safety very nearly to the point where they first entered between the hill and the stone wall in the rear of the Confederate column. A few more strides and they would have been out of reach of rebel bullets, and the intrepid commander would have lived to attain greater rank and distinction but for one last rash act—the culmination of courageous consecration.

On the extreme right of the enemy's line of battle was the Fifteenth Alabama. Dashing along the stone wall in their rear, Farnsworth saw approaching a small detachment of the First Battalion of his brigade, from which he had long been separated. Raising his sabre as a signal to follow, he cleared the stone wall and charged the Fifteenth Alabama. * * * Here he fell, with five mortal wounds in his body, and his riderless horse tore through the enemy's lines. In the Confederate reports of his charge, he is confounded with Capt. Cushman, who wore a linen coat that made him a conspicuous figure in the charge, and who fell by his side, and who fought with his revolver until he became insensible. Farnsworth died in the saddle. There was no wound in his head or face.

Thus perished one of the fine specimens of the volunteer soldier that the civil war produced. In its conception this charge recalls that of the Six Hundred at Balaclava, immortalized by Tennyson, but there the comparison ends. Armies witnessed the onslaught of the Light Brigage; the applause of thousands of friends, the astonished admiration of brave foes, spurred on the Six Hundred to greater endeavor; but the rash command their leader had received was obeyed with no more heroism, fidelity and devotion than was that which sent the brave Farnsworth to his death.

"Forward, the Light Brigade!"
Was there a man dismayed?
Not though the soldier knew
Some one had blundered;
Theirs not to make reply,
Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die,
Into the valley of Death
Rode the six hundred.

Cannon to right of them,
Cannon to left of them,
Cannon behind them
Volleyed and thundered;
Stormed at with shot and shell,
While horse and hero fell,
They that had fought so well,
Came through the jaws of Death,
Back from the mouth of Hell,
All that was left of them,
Left of six hundred.

When can their glory fade?
O, the wild charge they made!
All the world wondered.
Honor the charge they made!
Honor the light brigade,
Noble six hundred.

Gen. Elon John Farnsworth was never married, but his memory will be perpetuated. Men's actions live after they are dead. A few days after Gen. Pleasanton learned of his death, he wrote as follows to Gen. John F. Farnsworth:

My Dear General: In looking over my Gettysburg report, it has occurred to me that you should know what I said and what I thought of your late nephew; and as it will not probably see daylight for a long time, I send you the following quotation from that report:

It was in one of these brilliant engagements that the gallant Farnsworth fell heroically leading a charge of his brigade against the rebel infantry. Gifted in a high degree with a quick perception and a correct judgment, remarkable for his daring and coolness, his comprehensive grasp of the situation on the field of battle and the rapidity of his actions, had already distinguished General Farnsworth among his comrades in arms, In his death was closed a career that must have won the highest honors of his profession.

These were no empty words. He realized more than they expressed. Nature made him a general, and he was just entering the proper field for an exhibition of his high qualities when he was killed. Of our personal relations I will not speak; there are certain things too sacred to be written of those we love.

Yours as ever,

PLEASANTON.

To General J. F. Farnsworth.

James Patten Farnsworth had by 2d wife:

189. 3. Julius M., born 1855.

145.

Gen. John Franklin Farnsworth,[6] (John,[5] Samuel,[4] Lieut. David,[3] Samuel,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Mary A. Clark, had issue in Washington, D. C.: 7th Gen.

190. 1. John, b. 5 Sept. 1855; m. Mary Henderson, daut. of Gen. Thomas J. and Henrietta (Butler) Henderson. (Gen. Henderson is M. C. of Illinois). They had: 8th Gen.

192. 2. John, b. 31 Jan. 1891.

193. 3. Eunice, b. 18 Dec. 1892.

Gen. John F. Farnsworth had other children, who all died in infancy, names not obtained.

163.

Paul Farnsworth,[6] (Oliver, Jr.,[5] Oliver,[4] Stephen,[3] Samuel,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Martha Fulton, had issue: 7th Gen.

194. 1. Charles, m. in California, and died.

195. 2. William, resided in 1895, Minneapolis, Minn., and was in Chamber of Commerce building.

177.

William (G.) Farnsworth,[6] (Oliver,[5] Jonathan,[4] Stephen,[3] Samuel,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his first wife, Sybil Fessenden, had issue in Adams, Mass.: 7th Gen.

196. 1. Sybil E., b. 30 June, 1844; m. 18 Sept. 1867, Daniel Lapham of Adams, Mass. She d. 18 Sept. 1869; had 1 child: 8th Gen.

197. 1. Bessie, b. 26 June, 1869, d. 19 Nov. 1869.

By 2d wife, Betsey (Fessenden) Tanner, he had:

198. 2. Hattie Adelia, b. 25 Nov. 1846; m. 2 Oct. 1872, Henry J. Darby, b. 11 April, 1850; she d. 20 June, 1866; they had: 8th Gen.

199. 1. Jennie Lula, b. 24 April, 1874, d. 31 Aug. 1874.

200. 2. Bessie Lela, (twin), b. 24 April, 1874, d. 4 Sept. 1874.

201. 3. Lilly May, b. 13 Jan. 1880, d. 15 Jan. 1880.

202. 4. Anna Maria, b. 18 March, 1882.

203. 3. Eliza Amelia, b. 25 Nov. 1846, (twin); m. 13 May, 1868, Charles E. Fisk; had:

204. 1. Sybil F., b. 31 Oct. 1870, d. 31 Oct. 1872.

This marriage of Eliza's proved to be unfortunate, and she was divorced. She resides in Adams, Mass., and has the care of her sister's child, Anna.

ABIGAIL FARNSWORTH.

Abigail Farnsworth,[2] (Matthias,[1]) the ninth child, was born 17 Jan. 1671, in Groton, Mass. She m. her cousin, John Hutchins, (son of Nicholas, whose wife Elizabeth Farr, was sister to her mother Mary). The family of Nicholas Hutchins lived near the homestead of Matthias Farnsworth, and he, and probably his son John, formed part of the Farnsworth garrison in 1692. The marriage probably took place during those disturbed times when no records could be kept; or if kept, have been destroyed. The is no record of marriages from 1690 to 1706, in Groton, a period of sixteen years. Butler in his History of Groton, gives the names of John Hutchins' and Abigail's children, viz: 3d Gen.

1. John, b. 13 Oct. 1693.
2. Joshua, b. 5 Nov. 1696; m. 12 July, 1722, Sarah Shedd.
3. Abigail, b. 14 Sept. 1698.
4. Elizabeth, b. 6 Sept. 1700.
5. Benjamin, b. 17 Aug. 1705.

This family probably moved from Groton early, as they disappear entirely from the town records. There was a sixteen page pamphlet of the Hutchins' published in 1885, and Hutchins' are found abundantly in Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and other States.

JONATHAN FARNSWORTH.

Jonathan Farnsworth,[2] (Matthias,[1]) the sixth son and tenth child, was born 1 June, 1675, in Groton, Mass., in an exceedingly troubled time. Within three weeks of his birth, King Philip's war broke out, in which the first battle was fought at Swanzey, Mass., on the 20th June, 1675. Within nine months afterwards,—it was the 2d March, 1676,—the savages attacked Groton, burned nearly every dwelling house in the town, and all the inhabitants fled for safety to Concord. There Jonathan spent two years of his infancy—the child of refugees, among strangers—where the family lived as best it could.

When those two terrible years were passed the family returned to Groton and rebuilt its homestead, taking the chance of further attacks by the Indians, who some years later again fell upon the exposed settlement. Thus all his early life was passed amid perils and privations. His father died when he was but thirteen years old, and all his later training was received from his mother, who appears to have guided him with intelligence and fidelity. He m. in 1698, Ruth Shattuck, daut. of John and Ruth (Whitney) Shattuck of Watertown; she was born 24 June, 1678. Jonathan lived in the southerly part of Groton, not far from Prescott's "old mill," perhaps on the land before described that was assigned to his father. That part of Groton was, on the incorporation of Harvard, 1732, made part of the new town. Among the heads of families then set off, were Jonathan, Jonathan, Jr., Jeremiah, Ephraim, Reuben and Daniel Farnsworth, all of whom were petitioners for the change. (See Greene's boundary line of Groton, p. 47).

He "owned the covenant" with the church in Groton, 21 Sept. 1707, and Ruth, his wife, united with it 9 Oct. 1715. They, with their son Jonathan, Jr., were dismissed from that church and "recommended to lie the foundation of the church in Harvard," 14 Sept. 1733. He led the quiet life of a farmer in that town all his mature years, and died there, 16 June, 1748. His children as follows, births recorded in Groton, Mass.: 3d Gen.

1. 1. RUTH, b. 2 April, 1699.

2* 2. JONATHAN, b. 27 March, 1701; m. (1) 30 June, 1725, Mary Burt, who was the mother of all his children, she d. 9 June, 1765, aged 64; he m. (2) 5 May, 1767, Hannah Farwell. He lived in Harvard, and d. 1 Aug. 1775.

3* 3. EPHRAIM, b. 2 Jan. 1703; m. Deborah Beauman; was a farmer and lived at Harvard; he d. there, 18 Feby. 1737. He was a man of courage and energy, and was with his brother Reuben in Capt. Lovell's famous expedition through New Hampshire and Maine against the Indians, and was in the fight with the Indians 20 Feby. 1724. For a full account of John Lovell and his men, see N. E. H. & G. Reg., vol. 7, pages 61–70.

4* 4. REUBEN, b. 28 April, 1705; m. 7 April, 1730, Mary Holden of Watertown, Rev. Seth Storer performing the marriage ceremony. She was the daut. of Samuel Holden and his wife Susanna, and was born about 1706. He lived a while in Watertown, but was living in Harvard, 1732–3 and 4; he d. about 1755, and his wid. m. (2) Thomas Barney, a mason by trade. Alanson Gray of Dorset, Vt., says there is a record of this 2d marriage.

5* 5. PHINEAS, b. 15 Sept. 1707, bp. 21 Sept. 1707; m. Azubah Burt. He lived in that part of Harvard that was set off to Shirley; he d. 17 April, 1752; his wife Azubah, d. 1812, aged 100 years; his will is dated April, 1752, and after his death his wid. m. (2) Matthias Farnsworth. See Matthias Farnsworth, Jr. No. 13.

6. 6. PRISCILLA, b. 9 Sept. 1709, bp. 9 Oct. 1709; m. 30 Nov. 1731, Samuel Randall of Stow, Mass.

7* 7. NATHANIEL, b. 1 Sept. 1711; m. Eunice Sawtell, b. 7 Oct. 1720, daut. of Ephraim Sawtell and Abigail Farnsworth. See John Farnsworth, No. 1. He d. 9 March, 1784; she d. 6 Aug. 1799.

8. 8. JOHN, b. 8 Feby. 1714, d. 25 July, 1715.

9. 9. HANNAH, b. 10 Aug. 1716; m. 22 July, 1737, Josiah Butterfield, son of Joseph; he was born in Chelmsford, and lived on Francis hill in Westford, Mass.; they had:

10. 1. Josiah, b. 1738; was a soldier in 1758, in Capt. Lawrence's company in Nichols' Regiment.

11. 2. Simeon, b. 1740.

12* 10. SIMEON, b. 12 July, 1718; m. 28 May, 1744, Martha Hall; she d. 7 May, 1754, aged 34; m. (2) Lucy Atherton, who survived him and d. 13 May, 1823, aged 88 years and 7 months; he d. 21 March, 1805, in Washington, N. H. He lived until March, 1781, in that part of Harvard that was set off to Shirley, and then moved to Washington, where some of his sons had previously gone, and where he spent the remainder of his life as a farmer; his house was about a mile and a half from Washington Centre, near Millen pond.

13. 11. SUSANNA, b. 28 April, 1720; m. 9 Jan. 1752, Ebenezer Houghton.

14. 12. ELIAS, b. 30 May, 1723.

15* 13. JOHN, b. 25 April, 1725; m. 14 May, 1746, Sarah Davis, daut. of Ebenezer. His will is dated 20 Nov. 1750; he d. 24 Feby. 1756; his father-in-law, Ebenezer Davis, was executor.

16* 14. SILAS, b. 22 Nov. 1727; m. (1) Elizabeth Bowers; she died; m. (2) 15 Jan. 1760, Lydia Potts; he moved to New Hampshire and lived prob. at Swanzey and Gilsum.

15. BETTY, b. 13 Oct. 1729.

JONATHAN FARNSWORTH, JR.,[3] (Jonathan,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Mary Burt, had issue: The first four children were born in Groton, the remainder in Harvard, Mass. 4th Gen.

17. 1. MARY, b. 18 June, 1726, d. March, 1728.

18* 2. JONATHAN, b. 22 Nov. 1727; m. 24 March, 1749, Rachel Nutting; he d. 26 June, 1759. His estate was administered by his father, 25 April, 1762; he was a volunteer in the Louisburg expedition, 1745.

19. 3. BETTY, b. 13 Oct. 1729; m. 30 Dec. 1751, Jonathan Reed.

20* 4. JOSEPH, b. 1732; m. 21 April, 1755, Hannah Flynt at Harvard.

21* 5. ABEL, b. 19 May, 1734; m. 6 Dec. 1763, Elizabeth McFarling; he d. 17 Jan. 1801; she d. 21 April, 1811, aged 69.

22. 6. Child, b. 1736, d. infant, unnamed.

23. 7. ELIAS, b. 20 Nov. 1737, d. young.

24* 8. LEMUEL, b. 3 Aug. 1740; m. 12 Jan. 1763, Hannah Daby; he lived and died in Stoddard, N. H.

25. 9. RACHEL, b. 1742; m. 21 April, 1762, Ebenezer Binger.

3.

EPHRAIM FARNSWORTH,[3] (Jonathan,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Deborah Beaman, had issue: 4th Gen.

26. 1. DEBORAH, b. 17 Sept. 1727, in Groton; m. 3 June, 1742, Jonathan Beaman.
27. 2. EPHRAIM, b. April, 1734; prob. m. —— ——; he d. 1756.

4.

REUBEN FARNSWORTH,[3] (Jonathan,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Mary Holden, had issue in Harvard, Mass.: 4th Gen.

33. 6. Daughter, m. —— Belding.
34* 7. REUBEN, b. 4 June, 1751; m. (1) Keziah Kellogg, daut. of William, she b. 4 April, 1756; she d. one year after marriage without issue; he m. (2) Anna Kellogg,[5] (Moses,[4] Stephen,[3] Stephen,[2] Lieut. Joseph,[1]), a cousin of his first wife, she b. 2 Dec. 1755; he d. 1813; she d. Dec. 1838. He moved to Vermont from Harvard, Mass., and had 9 of his children baptized in Dorset, Vt., 29 June, 1794; he died in Burlington, Vt., but lived many years in Dorset, and appears to have been a man that was much respected.

Cousin Alanson Gray of Dorset, writing to me Dec. 11, 1893, says: "If you had visited Dorset when you were east, I could have shown you where grandfather Farnsworth's children were all born, except Moses. * * * That house is now standing, but was fixed over in 1813; yet the lower rooms and old fire-place with the same old crain and kettle hooks are there, [and] the old oven and dye-pot hole under it, is still there. * * * William Kellogg, whose father bought the place of Uncle Reuben, says he can remember running around the old chimney with three girls and one boy; these were days of YORE."

There is a family tradition that there was a Reuben Farnsworth born 1731, and thought to be the first-born of Reuben and Mary, and that he was the father of Reuben, b. 4 June, 1751; but a most thorough investigation fails to find the record of the birth or baptism of any such a Reuben in the records of Harvard or Cambridge, and the probabilities are that no such Reuben ever existed, though it was so given to me when a small boy, and I wrote it in my Sunday School Bible in 1846. I give the tradition for what it is worth, but I am satisfied in my own mind that the record given above is as correct as can be obtained.

216. 4. Isaac Danforth, b. 22 April, 1810, died 1888.

He was a very successful merchant at Boston, where he went early in life. He was interested in the East India trade, was a long time treasurer of the Boston Wharf Corporation, and was a large stockholder in many manufacturing companies. He acquired a large fortune, which he used in a very liberal but not ostentatious manner. He never married, and at his death gave large sums for useful charities. In 1873 he gave a fund to the Massachusetts Agricultural College, to provide medals for excellence in elocution, that are known as "Farnsworth Medals."

By his will he left $100,000 to build and maintain an art school in the Wellesley College, that is known as the "Farnsworth Art School." The building has been erected and will be a permanent memorial. The following communication to the Boston Journal, written soon after his death, is so just and so accurately descriptive of his character, that it is inserted here, as it was written by an intimate friend:

ISAAC D. FARNSWORTH.

To the Editor of the Boston Journal:

The man whose name is at the head of this communication died at the Hotel Windsor, in New York, where he was stopping on his way to Florida in search of milder skies to build up and recuperate, if possible, his physical strength, which for several years had been enfeebled by causes incident to his advancing years. His death deserves more than a mere passing notice. The writer of this article is ignorant of his birthplace or his exact age, nor has he taken the trouble to ascertain these facts, but for more than forty years he has known him intimately and well, and his familiar face and figure are well known to hundreds and thousands in Boston, where he has resided for more than half a century.

Mr. Farnsworth was eminently an honest man, a just man, a good man, a kind-hearted man, a benevolent man. I do not remember that he ever filled any office in the city or the State, but this I do know, that his record as made up will show not a blemish upon his character. He was brave, honest, upright. But, in addition to all this, he was one of the most benevolent men in our community. Modest, retiring, unostentatious, few knew of his good deeds beyond those who were the recipients of his charities.

Possessed of an ample fortune, he delighted to make others happy by bestowing it generously. The calls that were made upon his bounties were many, and I might say daily, but they never fretted or annoyed him, and rarely if ever was a needy applicant turned away or a worthy charity refused his aid. His name did not often appear in print among other donors, but many of our noblest charities will miss his generous annual contributions, and many a poor man and woman will long cherish the name and memory of this good man.

His religion was of that practical kind inculcated by the Saviour, to do all in his power to relieve human suffering, and he has heard the command from his Blessed Master, "Come up higher."

Reuben Farnsworth,[5] (Reuben,[4] Reuben,[3] Jonathan,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his first wife, Lucinda Kent, had issue: 6th Gen.

337* 1. Laura, b. 11 Jan. 1806, in Milton, Vt.; m. (1) 25 May, 1824, Nathaniel Frampton, in Burlington, Ohio; this union proved unhappy and they separated, 1835; m. (2) 1838, Owen Asa Owens.

She joined the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in an early day and passed through the trials and persecutions of that people in Nauvoo, Ill. Took the road westward over the Iowa plains to Winter Quarters, on the Missouri River, and emigrated to Utah, 1852; settled at Pleasant Grove, where her last days were spent in the midst of her friends, living with her son William, who was her solace and who shared her joys and her great trials in those days of heavy persecution. She was a woman of whom the world might well feel proud; her education—though limited—was fair; her ability to do good was great, and she was ever found seeking to strengthen the weak and soothing the cast down. She was ever on the side of right, and no pen can write her history, but when the "books are opened" and the records that are kept by the Angels are unfolded, I am persuaded that one page at least will glitter with heavenly light, and that will be where the little acts of Laura are written. To know her was to respect her; she was always staunch and true to her friends and to her God. Her last sickness was lingering and severe, but she passed quietly away to her rest, 24 June, 1881, at the residence of her son William in Pleasant Grove. HER REST IS SWEET.

338* 2. LYDIA, b. 5 Feby. 1808, in Dorset, Vt.; m. 2 Oct. 1832, Elijah Mayhew, b. 15 April, 1807, near Bangor, Maine; he d. 17 Jan. 1896; they resided in Edinburgh, Ind., where all their children were born.

They both joined the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and emigrated to Utah in 1853. She had a strange experience and a hard journey of over 1700 miles in a wagon before reaching her destination, being six months and one day from the time of leaving her pleasant home in Indiana, until her arrival in Salt Lake City, 9 Sept. 1853. She did the cooking, washing and other necessary labor in camp life for eight persons during the greater part of the entire journey. She resided in Pleasant Grove, Utah; a hale lady for one of her age; respected by the whole community. She d. 5 Feby. 1897. Being born on the same day of the month, we have been in the habit of sending birthday greetings, and I have been persuaded to insert the following as being worthy of being preserved:

MANTI, UTAH, 5th February, 1896.

To my dear Sister Lydia,—Greeting:

A greeting, Sister Lydia! To-day you're eighty-eight!
You've fought the battle bravely, your reward is great.
A truly noble woman,—brave, virtuous and true,—
A long life to look upon, a life that brighter grew.
And now thy sands are nearly run; a little longer lease
And you will reach the Great Beyond, dwell in greater peace;
Be surrounded with the just; greet father, mother dear,
And a mighty host of loving ones, who're ever drawing near.
You'll see our blessed Savior, who died for all mankind,

You'll find a lovely mansion,—be suited in your mind;
Friends, connections many, those you've known before,
And tell them of the gospel, and open prison's door.
With a true companion, who nobly fought the fight,
Will be forever joined and enjoy eternal light.
There, God will bless your union, parting be no more,
No pain, no tears or sorrow on that golden shore.
Much more I could tell you: the truth you know quite well,
Some day I'll come and see you, in heaven, where you'll dwell.
But I must tarry yet a while; how long, I do not know;
But when I hear the Reaper's call, I'm ready then to go.
I must not shirk a duty; God's pleasure must fulfill;
I'll wait and wait His pleasure, and try to do His will,
And when the battle's over, and my work is truly done,
Will bask in glorious presence of the Father and the Son.
And when the Resurrection trump shall call us from the ground,
How quickly we will shake off earth at that welcome sound.
Immortal be our rising, though sown in weakness here,
God giveth us the victory, we vanquish death and fear.

Your loving Brother,

MOSES F. FARNSWORTH.

He was Bishop of Beaver, Probate Judge of the county, member of the Territorial Legislature, etc.; also a farmer and freighter. He d. 31 July, 1887, in Beaver, surrounded by most of his numerous family; much lamented and greatly respected by the entire community. The following obituary appeared in the Southern Utonian, a paper published in Beaver, August 5, 1887:

Death of P. T. Farnsworth.

Once again are the people of Beaver called upon to mourn the loss of a great and good man—a man who has stood firm in his integrity to the principles of the gospel of Christ. Philo T. Farnsworth departed this life at 11:15 a. m., last Sunday morning, aged 61 years, 6 months and 10 days.

The life of this faithful and devoted servant of God began in Burlington, Ohio, on the 21st day of January, 1826. When about 17 years of age, the principles of that gospel which has been his life's devotion since, were sounded in his ears by Elder Franklin D. Richards, also at that time a mere boy. The truth of the testimony borne by this servant of the Lord, (Elder Richards), so impressed itself upon the mind of Bro. Farnsworth that he was baptized and identified himself with the Latter-day Saints. He has been with them ever since; through their drivings, mobbings, persecutions and trials, he has stood the test. He assisted in the erection of the Nauvoo Temple, was a member of the Nauvoo Legion, and had responsibilities and offices of trust placed upon him, thus showing the esteem in which he was held by the Church. In 1848, one year after the entrance of the pioneers into these valleys, Bro. Farnsworth came to Utah. Shortly after his arrival he was called upon to go to what is now known as Pleasant Grove, Utah county, to assist in the settlement of that place. True to the trust thus imposed upon him, he went, lent his influence and aid in settling that place. From there he went to Fillmore, and assisted in the erection of the State House there. In December, 1856, in company with his family, he moved to this valley—Beaver—which has been his home ever since. A new position, one of great importance and requiring exceeding judgment, was placed upon him here; he was called to act as Bishop of the Beaver Ward. This position he filled until Pres. J. R. Murdock released him, when shortly afterward a change was made in the organization to the Beaver Stake of Zion.

Bishop Farnsworth has a large circle of relatives and friends. His family number 30 children, 20 sons and 10 daughters, 24 of whom are still alive. During his recent illness, which had been slowly sapping his life for some months, he was a patient sufferer. He has been energetic in the struggle of life, and fought valiantly to avoid making himself a burden to his family by using all his powers to assist himself. He was confined to his bed not over a week, when the news of his demise was circulated throughout the community, as already stated, last Sunday morning.

The funeral services were conducted at his late residence in the Second Ward, this city, on Monday, August 1st, at 2 p. m. The speakers on that occasion were Elder Daniel Tyler and Pres. John R. Murdock. An immense concourse of people were in attendance and followed the remains to their final resting place in the Beaver cemetery, where it is hoped they will lie in peace until the trump of the Angel of the first resurrection shall sound, and Philo T. Farnsworth shall arise in immortality and newness of life to enjoy a thousand year's reign in the kingdom of God.

President F. D. Richards being apprised of the death of Bro. Farnsworth, sent the following telegram of condolence to the family:

Hon. P. T. Farnsworth:

Having been absent, your telegram is only just received. Mrs. Richards and I sincerely mourn the death of your father. His great kindness in the times of our deepest distress greatly endeared him to us. Accept our united condolence. I wish we could attend the funeral, but it is impracticable.

348* 12. Moses Franklin, b. 5 Feby. 1834, in Edinburgh, Ind. He received a common school education; was brought up to the mercantile business, placed behind the counter at the age of ten years, and was in the employ of his brother-in-law, Austin Shipp, for nine years; he became a proficient salesman, book-keeper and accountant. He left the counter and yard stick, and took the ox whip, when he didn't know "gee" from "haw" about driving, and drove an ox team from Indianapolis, Ind., to Salt Lake City, a distance of over 1700 miles, starting on the 8 March, and arriving in Salt Lake City, 9 Sept. 1853. There was plenty of mud, snow and slush on the prairies of Indiana and Illinois and waste plains of Iowa, and he had all the experience that a trip across the plains could give in that early day. Upon his arrival in Utah he located at Pleasant Grove, and was almost immediately enrolled in Capt. Thorit Peck's company of militia, and was thirty days in service in the Walker-Black Hawk Indian war that fall; was Orderly Sergeant, and arose to the rank of 3d Lieut. Co. B, Battalion of Infantry of Pleasant Grove military district, and was commissioned such by Governor Brigham Young, taking rank 25 Nov. 1854, Hon. A. W. Babbitt being then Secretary of the Territory. He taught school the winters of 1853, 4 and 5, and returned to clerking in the store 1856. Was commissioned First Lieut. Co. B, 1st Battalion, 3d Regt. Infantry of Nauvoo Legion, 28 Sept. 1857.

He joined the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and since he first came to Utah has shared their joys and sorrows. Was called on a mission to England in 1862, and again in 1868, both of which he faithfully fulfilled; was called to help form the settlement of Kanab, 1870, to which he responded; has held offices of trust and confidence, and is one of Utah's workers for the good of all. Was called to St. George, 14 June, 1877, and entered upon the duties of Recorder in the St. George Temple, and continued there until May, 1888, when he was called to the same position in the Manti Temple, since which time he has resided in Manti, Utah. He has interested himself very much in gathering material for this Genealogy, and is the compiler thereof.

'Grandfather was born in Groton, Mass., and lived in Washington, N. H.; moved to Claremont, and from there to Westmoreland, in 1799; he says grandfather worked in Groton for he had heard him talk about it; when I visited him Tuesday evening, Dec. 5, 1871, I found him sitting up in bed having his foot dressed. Aunt Betsey came to the door when I knocked, her hands both shaky with palsy. She says the little girl they adopted [Betsey Farnsworth], was married five years ago to Samuel Monks, and lives in New York; he is in the business of putting up condensed milk, and has been in the business of "ship stores." Betsey is now very kind to her foster father and mother, who are in great need of her care and affection. They are now expecting her home every day.' "

2. Russell M., b. 30 Sept. 1853.

618. 2. RUFUS, b. 8 Oct. 1823, in Albany, N. Y.; m. 4 Sept. 1850, Mary Jane ———. No further information.

619. 3. ADDISON, b. 9 July, 1825, in Albany, N. Y.; m. 9 Jan. 1854, Ann Elizabeth Coy.

He was a prominent soldier in the service of his country. He was residing at Albany upon the breaking out of the Mexican war. Then he entered the volunteer service as a second lieutenant, and by his meritorious services won rapid advancement and was soon promoted captain, and at the close of the war held the rank of major. On disbanding the volunteers the Government offered him a commission in the regular army, but he declined it. Returning to civil life, he became a journalist and founded a paper called the Albany Dutchman. The paper was not successful and he gave it up. He was appointed to an office in the Custom House in the City of New York, which he held until the breaking out of the war of the Rebellion. He at once engaged in the organization of a regiment of volunteers, which was made the 38th New York Regiment of Infantry, and he was appointed its lieutenant-colonel. Holding that rank, he was in the first battle of Bull Run, 21 July, 1861. Col. J. H. H. Ward, in his report of the action of his regiment in the battle, has this to say of him:

"Where all have done so well, it would be invidious to make comparisons; but in the case of Lieutenant-Colonel Farnsworth, Thirty-eighth Regiment. I cannot find words to express my admiration of his conduct. He was confined to a sick-bed for seven days previous to the engagement, and arrived on the scene of action in an ambulance; and the fact of his rising from a sick-bed, and entering on the field with his regiment, and his courage and coolness during the day, entitle him to the highest consideration." (1 Reb. Rec. 29).

His ability and bravery were recognized, and he was promoted Colonel of the 79th Regiment of New York Volunteers. He was in the second Bull Run battle, where he was wounded so severely that he was incapacitated for active service in the field; but after recovering partially from his wounds he was appointed Colonel of the First Regiment of the Veteran Reserve Corps, with the rank of Brevet Brigadier-General; and this office he held until the close of the war. After that he was again employed in the Custom House at New York, in a position which he held until his death, 11 April, 1877, at Brooklyn, N. Y. He was buried at Albany with military honors befitting his rank and services. His children:

1. Addison, b. 9 June, 1853.
2. Elizabeth, b. 1862.

620. 4. Lovinia, b. 30 May, 1827, Albany, N. Y., d. 20 July, 1847; unm.

OBITUARY.

Another Veteran Mustered Out.

Rufus G. Farnsworth died at the home of Mrs. Perez Whiting, 52 High street, Sunday morning, of a complication of diseases, his stomach, liver and kidneys being involved.

Mr. Farnsworth was born in Fitchburg in 1840, the youngest son of the late Levi and Abigail Farnsworth.

Mr. Farnsworth has resided in this city nearly all his life, and was for many years employed by the Union Machine company as pattern maker, until three years ago when he went to Warren in the employ of the Slater Engine company. Last spring he was obliged to give up work and returned to this city.

RUFUS G. FARNSWORTH.

Mr. Farnsworth leaves a widow, Mary P., and a son, Wallace W. Farnsworth, two brothers, C. P. Farnsworth of Denver, Col., and J. M. Farnsworth of Warren, and two sisters, Mrs. Walter Howell of Lawrence, Kan., and Mrs. J. M. Reed of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mr. Farnsworth enlisted in Co. F, 57th Regt., Mass. Vols., Feb. 18, 1864, and was discharged as sergeant, by order of the war department, June 28, 1865. He was twice wounded. At the explosion of the Petersburg mine, July 30, 1864, he received a severe gun shot wound in the right shoulder and on another occasion a bullet in the right knee.

Mr. Farnsworth was a member of Mt. Roulstone Lodge and King David Encampment, I. O. O. F., and Plymouth Colony, No. 97, Pilgrim Fathers of this city, and was adjutant of Clara Barton Post, No. 64, of Warren.

The funeral of Rufus G. Farnsworth was held, Wednesday at 2 p. m., at 52 High street, and was attended by a large number of relatives and friends, and members of the different organizations of which he was a member.

Rev. Dr. N. T. Whitaker, pastor of the M. E. church, officiated, and paid a high tribute to the sterling worth and integrity of the deceased. The singing was by J. Warren White, Mrs. C. L. Mayne, Lillian A. White and F. D. Brocklebank. The selections were "Remember Me," and "The Home Land."

The bearers were W. H. Howard of Mt. Roulstone Lodge; Aaron F. Whitney of King David Encampment; Junior Vice Commander George Bliss, Quartermaster L. A. Powers of Clara Barton Post, Warren; C. A. Bigelow and J. F. Bartlett of the 57th regiment.

The casket was covered and surrounded with handsome flowers from the different organizations, relatives and friends.

*Joseph Farnsworth was born at Sharon, N. H., and at the age of thirteen he removed with the family to Mt. Elam, overlooking Fitchburg, Mass. Here he made a profession of his faith in Christ, and ever after lived an earnest and consistent christian life. From there he moved to Keene, N. H., and learned the trade of a wheelwright, and while thus employed fitted himself to enter Dartmouth College in 1839. Expecting to enter the ministry, but having to work his way and support himself while getting his education, after two years of diligent study he was forced, on account of ill health, to leave college. He became connected with the Phillips Academy of Andover, Mass., and afterward, as professor in Mt. Prospect School at West Bloomfield, [now Montclair] N. J., and in the Irving Institute at Tarrytown, N. Y. Later, he engaged in business at 155 Broadway, New York. and his entire business career was marked by sterling integrity and honesty. He was an active member of Sullivan Street Church and in the Carmine Street Presbyterian Church in New York. He res. Roseville, a suburb of Newark, N. J., where for seventeen years he was an esteemed Elder of the Roseville Church, and particularly active and successful in mission work among the poor and lowly. He was a man of fine intellect, a good public speaker, a graceful prose writer, and author of many poems of unusual merit, a number of which found their way into print—anonymously—as he was too unassuming to allow his name to appear in print.

PHILO TAYLOR FARNSWORTH,[6] (Reuben,[5] Reuben,[4] Reuben,[3] Jonathan,[2] Matthias,[1]) and his wife Margaret Yates, had issue: 7th Gen.

854. 1. PHILO TAYLOR, b. 15 Oct. 1849, in Salt Lake City, Utah; m. 15 Feby. 1874, Julia Permelia Murdock, daut. of Hon. John R. Murdock of Beaver, a very amiable lady; she was born 25 Dec. 1862, in Beaver.

His parents settled in Pleasant Grove shortly after his birth, and in 1854 moved to Fillmore. In attempting to follow his father, who was hauling a load of house-logs some distance, young Philo wandered off and was lost. The neighborhood was aroused, and with the help of sagacious Indian braves the hunt commenced, following his tiny footsteps as best they could. He was found about fifteen miles from home, after being out two days and one night,—alive and unharmed from the cold and exposure, though almost exhausted. The hand of Providence was shown in his wonderful preservation.

In Dec. 1856, his parents moved to Beaver, and the family endured the privations and hardships of a frontier life as best they could, under the trying circumstances in which Utah's early settlers built settlements in their onward progress of redeeming the barren wastes. His early education was limited, but being always studious he was reading and solving problems while freighting on the road or teaming from the canyons. He was enrolled in the militia when seventeen years old, and was one of the guard at Fort Sanford on the Sevier. Shortly after this he engaged in mining at Pioche, Nev., though his time was mostly employed at home, improving the farm. At nineteen he began a clerkship in his uncle's store; being ambitious, trusty and capable, he made his clerkship a success, and soon after began business for himself. In 1877 he became Supt. of Beaver C. M. I., and since then has been largely interested in mercantile, agricultural, manufacturing, stock-raising and mining pursuits. He has a farm of eleven hundred acres under cultivation in Beaver county. Was mayor of Beaver two years; served three terms in the Territorial legislature; eight years on the auditing committee of the Asylum; and since 1889, Supt. of the Horn Silver Mine at Frisco; is also Supt. of the Austin Mining Co., in Nevada. Is president of the State Bank of Nevada; director of the Nevada Central R. R. Also a director of Z. C. M. I., and of the State Bank of Utah. He moved to Salt Lake City in 1893, and res. at 139 East South Temple Street. He has always been a liberal donor and a friend to the poor—a man of worth and sterling integrity, respected in all his business relations, and is a member of the church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. His children born in Beaver, Utah:

HON. P. T. FARNSWORTH.

1. Julia Almira, b. 2 Dec. 1874.

Louisa Caroline died 19 Sept. 1896. The following is clipped from the Manti Messenger, issue of Sept. 25th, 1896:

DIED.

Louisa Caroline (Farnsworth) Hardy, died Saturday morning, Sept. 19th, at 11:35. Deceased was the daughter of Moses F. Farnsworth and Elizabeth Jane Stewart, and wife of Ernest V. Hardy of Manti. She was born June 8th, 1865, in Salt Lake City. She had poor health for ten years, and for the last five years has been almost an invalid. Her last illness commenced July 31st, and continued until it ended her mortal career.

Funeral services were held at the residence Monday, 10 o'clock a. m. A large concourse of friends and relatives paid their last respects, and the floral offerings were numerous and beautiful. The choir sang "Nearer my God, to Thee," "Sister, thou wast mild and lovely," and "Sweet rest in Heaven." The speakers were Presidents J. D. T. McAllister, J. B. Maiben, Bishop W. T. Reid and J. H. Wodskow. The remarks from each were impressive and most heartfelt. Deceased was a true christian. She knew God and his Son, Jesus Christ, and was fully prepared to go. Among her last expressions after bidding the family and friends good-bye, were: "How long, how long, must I knock?" Soon the answer came, "He says I may come. All right, all right. Amen, Amen." And soon after, "I am dying now," and passed away with a most heavenly smile and happy expression on her countenance. She is sure of a great reward among the just, and when the books are opened and her name is called, there will be one bright page where the chapter of her inner life is written. Numerous letters and telegrams of condolence were received by the family from relatives and friends who were unable to attend the funeral. May she rest in peace; one greatly beloved, for to know her was to love her. She leaves a husband, three lovely children, father, mother, brothers and sisters, and a host of relatives and friends everywhere to mourn her loss.—[Com.

TO LOUISA.

[A Tribute.]

Pearly gates open'd before you,
In the home you were first born;
No nighthood there to await you,
For, there is no fading morn.
Heaven is one eternal day
To which I am drawing near;
There Father and Son's bright ray,
Cheers the heart that's aching here.

My loved one's in her home-land,
With Angels so bright and fair;
No sin or sorrow in that band;
They've no more sickness there.
The singing of those chosen ones
Is now sounding in my ears,
And when I join those loved ones,
My eyes will shed no tears.

Those that I love are many there;
They're calling on me to come
To rest and peace and have no care,
But live in that dear home.
Death is not there; but there is life,
Eternal life in realms above;
Christ wrought freedom from all strife,
By His great eternal love.

—Father.

ELDERS' CONDOLENCE.

The Late Elder Chipman's Associates Send a Message to his Wife.

The News correspondent, "Phoenix," writing from Palmerston North, New Zealand, on October 1st, says:

I am requested to forward you a copy of the letter of condolence, sent to the bereaved family of Elder Otto L. Chipman. The document was neatly written on vellum, and embellished in black and silver by one of the Elders, and we hope it may add consolation to the bereaved ones in their sad trial. * * *

CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS.

A Letter of Condolence to the bereaved wife of Elder Otto Chipman, who died at Huntley Waikato, New Zealand, August 31st, 1892.

Dear Sister: With deep regret we learn of the sad death of your beloved husband, and we desire to convey to you our sympathy in your great bereavement. Elder Otto Chipman was our co-laborer in the Australasian Mission, and, though his labors in this land were brief, he had endeared himself to all who were honored with his acquaintance. We admired his quiet, affectionate and studious disposition, and anticipated that he would accomplish great good amongst the aborigines of these Islands. Our Heavenly Father has called him to labor in a higher sphere, and our departed brother is, undoubtedly, rejoicing in the reward of the faithful, for "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord. * * * * They rest from their labors and their works do follow them." We sincerely sympathise with the loved ones left behind, and pray that the spirit of the Lord will comfort and bless you, dear sister, and that you may bow in submission to His will, "who doeth all things well."

SIGNED: W. T. STEWART,
President of the Mission.
JOHN G. KELSON.
B. GODDARD.
P. P. THOMAS.
WESLEY GIBSON.
